And because we do one thing, and one thing only, we do it very well. In fact, when it comes to securing mortgages, people say we're the best. We'll get you the perfect mortgage. You may only need us once or twice in a lifetime. But when you do, we'll be there. Call us. You'll see. There's a lot more to mortgages than just numbers.

PHONE ORDER DEPARTMENT
1(888) 414 - DOWN

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

"We go the distance for you."

DAN PELOSI'S TOP THREE FUTURE JOBS.....

November Pelosi News

The Electrician, $60 Million, Nanny, East Hampton, Legal Challenges, Murder

PELOSI HOT SEAT ny post 11/05/03

The Long Island grand jury probing the murder of millionaire Ted Ammon (clubbed to death in his East Hampton mansion two years ago) has asked to hear the testimony of the prosecution's main target in the slaying — Danny Pelosi — who married Ammon's widow, Generosa, The Post has learned. Pelosi, a local electrician, is ready and eager to testify before the Suffolk County special grand jury in Riverhead — if he is granted immunity from prosecution, his lawyer said.

"I'm ready to go," Pelosi told them.

TED'S ESTATE TAKES 10M SLAP AT DANNY ny post 11/05/03

Ted Ammon's estate has filed a wrongful-death lawsuit — for more than 10 million — against Danny Pelosi, the man currently targeted by a Long Island jury in Ammon's killing. "They can sue me for as much as they want — I'm broke," Pelosi told the Post.

PELOSI DOCKED 2.6M IN WILL ny post

His phone bills are $500 a month. He has suffered a nervous breakdown, lost 18 pounds and no longer works.

11/07/03

Generosa Ammon, angry that new hubby Danny Pelosi blew 2.6 million of her money on gambling and luxuries in less than a year (between December 2001 and November 2002), demanded in one of her wills that every dollar be deducted from his inheritance, a source familiar with the document said yesterday. With the 2 million given him five months ago in a final post-nuptial agreement — which he claims to have already spent on lawyers — Pelosi has allegedly gone through 4.6 million of (the late) Generosa's money in less than two years, the source said. "Every penny of the 2.6 million is totally accounted for," Pelosi said yesterday.

GAY AMMON SHOCK ny post 11/13/03

A neighbor of murdered millionaire Ted Ammon claims they had a seamy gay sex tryst two years before the slaying — and the key suspect in Ammon's death may use the bombshell revelation as part of his defense.

Self-described artist Sam Wagner, 53, told The Post his bizarre "anonymous gay sex" encounter occurred while he was walking his poodle along a rural East Hampton road on a warm day in 1999 and he met a tall, handsome jogger. Minutes later, the pair had sex behind a tree. Wagner said the pair never exchanged names but he later saw the same man jog into the Ammon property.

SUSPECT VOICES FEARS Newsday 11/15/03

"For the trauma it has caused my own children, and my own family...it makes me wish I never met her," Daniel Pelosi said of Generosa Ammon Pelosi, who died of cancer in August at age 47. In a wide ranging interview Friday, Pelosi maintained his innocence but conceded he has grown terrified he will soon be indicted for murder. He has assembled a team of Manhattan attorneys and former homicide investigators, he said, but still barely sleeps. His phone bills are $500 a month. He has suffered a nervous breakdown, lost 18 pounds and no longer works.

"My days are pure dilemma," Pelosi, 40, said. "I deal with my kids and her (Generosa's) kids. Mostly, I sit at home and try to think of ways to get my story out there."

After Generosa's death, the twins she had adopted with Ammon were ordered to live with the court-appointed nanny, Kay Mayne, whom Generosa had hired in England. (In her will, she left $1 million for her nanny, plus a life tenancy in the house in East Hampton, $2 million to Pelosi if he needed it to be used in his murder defense but nothing else, and the balance of her fortune, estimated at $60 million, to her children.)

"At the beginning (of our romance), it was all about me and her. When you first meet a girl, you don't care about the old boyfriend. It was real."

Generosa's attorney, Michael Dowd of Manhattan, said that before she died, Generosa realized she had made a mistake marrying Pelosi and wanted nothing to do with him.

That, Pelosi said, simply isn't true. "I got out of jail (on a felony DWI conviction in November of last year) and spent every day with her when I wasn't going to doctors for my nervous breakdown. But she was out of it. There were times when she called me Ted."

GENEROSA 'PAYOFF' ny post 11/21/03

The former housekeeper at Generosa Ammon's East Hampton mansion claims she got a $10,000 payoff from her employer's nanny to "keep quiet" about things she had seen at the estate. The housekeeper, who asked that her name not be used, claimed nanny Kathryn Mayne administered drugs and alcohol to Generosa (during her dying days) that led to overdoses and bizarre behavior. After Generosa died, the servant said, Mayne, who got $1 million in Generosa's will, told her "You're not in the will, but here's a check for $10,000 — and don't you dare say anything about any of the incidents that happened at this house."

RELATED DEVELOPMENT ny post 11/21/2003

Secret tape recordings made by Generosa's last husband, Danny Pelosi, could support his contention that she was attempting to commit an assisted suicide before she died. •

A Movie Star Departs

Bob Baugh Of Sagaponack, In Four Films In Three Years, Moves South

By Dan Rattiner

One of this area's greatest movie stars, Bob Baugh, has just moved out of the area. The community mourns.

Baugh has played the role of a small country storeowner in each of the films he has been in. Not a classically trained actor, he is, in fact — or was, in fact — the co-owner of the Sagaponack General Store. He is hard working. And has been in four movies in six years.

Many movie stars, producers, directors and location managers who scout locations for film shoots in these parts stop in for a sandwich or a cup of coffee at the Sagaponack General Store and say "Hey, this place would be good for a scene in our movie." And "that guy over there looks exactly like the guy who should be behind the counter in one of these stores."

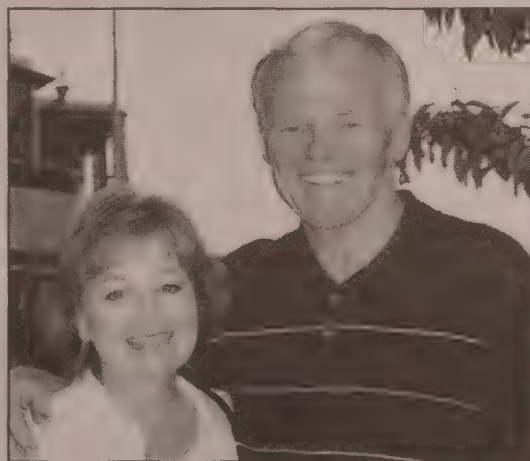

Baugh was 53 when he, his wife, his daughter and son-in-law took over the store ten years ago. He is movie-star handsome, a good teller of tales and a good listener, and so, well, there it was.

Bob Baugh's first film was On the Rocks, a full length feature film about two women who come out to the Hamptons and get caught up with making a movie within a movie.

"It was a Thelma and Louise kind of thing," Bob said, noting that On the Rocks was shown at the Hamptons Film Festival in 2000. "It was very funny. The women wind up doing a cooking show for TV. And there was the scene in the general store they asked me to be in."

The Sagaponack General Store has a screen door that bangs when you go out, a cracker barrel and checkerboard where locals sit around, wooden shelves and a counter with an old cash register. The store sells film, sandwiches, groceries, clothing, newspapers and coffee. Also couscous, brie and other upscale fare. It's the only store in Sagaponack and it shares space in the old building with the Post Office. It's been around for about a hundred years and is on the New York State List of Historic Places.

Barbara and Bob Baugh

Bob had a speaking part in On the Rocks. He stood behind the counter next to a young teenager, manning the register. A man comes in, makes a purchase and sets it down.

"Hi Tony," Bob says, "how ya doin'?"

"You know, you got a good employee here," the man says.

"I sure do," Bob says.

The filmmakers had Bob say "I sure do" over twenty different times with twenty different inflections before they got what they wanted.

"They were looking for a certain accent," Bob told me.

Bob's second movie appearance was in a student film called Man on the Run made by "a kid called Adam. I don't remember his last name, but his mother lives up on the turnpike. We worked hard on it, but the film never got finished."

In this film, made during the summer of 2001, Bob was again cast as a general store counter man. He didn't have any lines to say, but this time they put make up on him.

"First time, I had lines but no makeup, second film I had makeup but no lines."

Bob's job in "Man on the Run" was to look askance at what was going on at the cracker barrel and the checkers table in the middle of the room. The stars of the film, a man and a 12-year-old girl that were con artists, were playing three card monte, with bets out for all takers. They were cheating, of course.

"You couldn't see them actually do it," Bob said, "but I looked on disapprovingly as all the customers I had here got fleeced. This was kind of a 'Paper Moon' sort of thing. Guy and a kid working together."

Bob Baugh's third film role was in an award winning short, eight minutes long, called In the Red made by Lucy Weisman.

"This was in 2000. I was filmed at the cash register making a sale. No words again. There was a lot of narration in this film. It's been in about 35 film festivals and has won all sorts of awards."

Baugh's most recent appearance, and apparently his last in these parts, is in an upcoming film, starring Kim Basinger and Kevin Kostner that will be released sometime next year. They were making it in the summer of 2002.

"The film is about a love affair involving an older woman and a younger man. One of the scenes they were going to shoot was this fellow coming out of the store. They made three appointments with me to be at the store to make the scene, but at the last minute they cancelled each one of them. They felt pretty bad about it. Kim was a customer. Anyway, so, instead they invited Barbara and me to what was supposed to be the final scene in the movie, where Kim Basinger and this other guy are on a big lawn in front of a summer house and you see this guy walking across the lawn. We spent much of the day there. It was great fun.

"Then they changed plans and wound up the next morning doing the scene of the man coming out of the store anyway."

"What was your part?"

"I wasn't in it, actually. I was inside at the register."

"Weren't you in some other movies?" I asked. "I seem to remember you were in some other things."

"Oh yeah. It wasn't a movie, though. It was a rock video. That was my introduction to acting. Around 1996, the beginning of my career. All these celebrities come into the store, as you know. One was a rock star. So, I helped make this thing. And I have this tape of the rock video. It was made by John Spencer's Blues Explosion. The band was singing and there were flashes of fifties rockers dancing alternating with regular, everyday people doing normal things. Barbara and I were two of the everyday people. We exercised on the lawn of Paul Brennan's parent's house on Ocean Avenue. We did jumping jacks and sit-ups and things. It was very cool."

"So that's how it all got started."

"Yup."

Bob and Barbara Baugh are today living in Wesley Chapel, Florida, twenty miles north of Tampa and it was there that I caught up with Bob and talked to him on the phone.

"This is the New Tampa, they call it," Bob said. "It's the ninth fastest growing county in the country."

Ten years ago, Bob and his family had learned the store in Sagaponack was for sale and had come from a small town in Oregon where Bob had worked as a real estate broker. He and Barbara went into business with Beth Ann, his daughter, and her husband Rick.

"Beth Ann is my youngest. My most spoiled kid. She and Rick had three kids and then two more since we got to Sagaponack. Now we've sold our interest to them and they will continue to run the store while we start again down here in Florida."

Bob and Barbara went south three weeks ago at 2 a.m. on a Thursday, in a caravan of cars with one of the store trucks bringing their possessions.

"Everybody helped out," Bob said. "I was going to go down to the store one final time to start the coffee, but it was too early. In Florida, some of the family stayed five days to help us get settled. We were back in Sagaponack for Thanksgiving."

Bob has taken a job as General Manager for Landover Petroleum, a company that is building a chain of convenience stores and truck stops across the south.

"My first one was going to be here, outside Tampa, where we are putting in 30 gas pumps, a convenience store and a car wash, but we've decided instead to first re-do a truck stop in Orlando we own. We're remodeling one part of it and then we move on to another part of it. It's exciting work."

Bob and Barbara asked to be remembered to some of the regular patrons of the store and al-

Buyer Beware

"Sale Blitz" at Wal-Mart Causes First Shopping War Casualty

By Dan Rattiner

Around four in the morning this past Saturday, a 41-year-old woman named Patricia VanLester and her sister Linda Ellzey drove out to the Wal-Mart SuperCenter not far from the VanLester home in Orange City, Florida. They didn't know anything about a big sale. They had gone there because it was a quiet time to go shopping and Mrs. VanLester had been up late writing a letter on her computer and the printer cartridge had gone bad. She knew they had more at the Wal-Mart.

Indeed, at that hour, there were not very many customers about at Wal-Mart, although there were a lot of sales associates on the floor. They were excitedly getting ready for the morning, arranging the merchandise and putting up big signs reading "Five Hour Sales Blitz." When the two sisters got to the computer accessory aisle, one of these sales associates told her that everybody was preparing for the biggest sale of the year at the store, which they were holding for the five hours beginning at 6 a.m. that morning, the biggest shopping day of the year. It was the day after Thanksgiving.

A sales associate also told them they could pay the $12 for the printer cartridge there at four a.m., but if they wanted to wait around until six when the doors open, the cartridge would be just $7. Everything else would be on sale, too.

The sisters talked about it and decided that two hours was not all that long to wait, that they didn't have anything else to do and there sure was a lot of excitement building there in the big store and so, they ought to do that and maybe walk around to see whatever else was going on sale. The letter could wait.

The Wal-Mart store in Orange City is, at

A PLEA FOR THE EAST HAMPTON FILM STUDIOS

By David Nemer

I had only planned on staying at East Hampton Studios long enough to gather up the props we left behind, following our three-week shoot of Fallout this summer, do some catching up with Frazer, and pack my car, to make it home in time for the Ohio State-Michigan game. That was my plan on Saturday.

I'm probably too sentimental to begin with, but maybe walking in the front door and having tons of memories stirred, and the studio smelling the same as it did in the midst of summer, or reliving what it felt like to be here at two in the morning and not sure when we'd go home, and then arriving back again at 7 a.m. and seeing Frazer already at his desk working... I remembered all over again how vital East Hampton Studios was in helping us realize our dream of making our first feature film.

Three months have passed since then.

The drive on Sunrise Highway was almost too easy today. And something about the Hamptons actually seemed accessible – maybe even lonely – and very different from the July craziness we had been living in. In fact, today was much more similar to the day in March when I first met Frazer and told him we had almost no money and that the studio was far bigger, better and more professional than anything I'd imagined having a shot at. He put his about 110,000 square feet, certainly a big store, but they took their time and wandered leisurely through it all, talking to the sales associates. They did notice there was a crowd of shoppers forming outside. The store was indeed open 24 hours a day, but beginning at 4 a.m., they had made it a rule that only those who were still inside — and the sisters were inside — could stay inside. Guards would be keeping the sale shoppers at bay until 6.

The sisters, during their walk, agreed at the beginning that they would limit their purchases to just one thing on sale. They weren't going to get caught up in the frenzy. And they didn't have a whole lot of spare money on them anyway. The best item they found scheduled to go on sale exactly at 6 was a DVD player for $29.87. There was a whole stack of them.

They slid one out of the stack, put it in a shopping cart, and wheeled about the rest of the store with it to see if there was anything better than that. There wasn't, they decided. And so, at five minutes to six, they wheeled the cart over to one of the checkout counters and waited there with the DVD player and the printer cartridge as they were told to do. They would be getting the very first player sold.

At exactly six a.m., a siren went off, the doors opened and the people began to run into the store. At six oh one, the sisters bought the two items, which were put into a bag, and headed for the exit. They'd be out of there before the shopping frenzy began. They'd be driving away when the all the incoming shoppers, the sun just rising over the parking lot, would be inside the store screaming and yelling and tearing the place apart. They would do that if they could just get out.

As they approached the exit doors, both women and the shopping cart were hit by a moving wall of rabid shoppers surging into the store. Ms. Ellzey was slammed sideways into a wall, the shopping cart was turned over and Ms. VanLester was knocked to the ground, disappearing under the charge of the crowd.

Ms. Ellzey, seeing what had happened, yelled "Stop! Stop! My sister is under there!"

The surge continued. Ms. Ellzey screamed and screamed and eventually, as the initial surge lessened, a few of the shoppers noticed this body underfoot and stopped, making an obstruction that the other surging shoppers had to get around.

Ms. VanLester lay still on the floor. A few people bent down to look at her. Ms. Ellzey, on the other hand, remained pinned where she was, still screaming. But now she began fighting to get through. Each time, though, she got swept down the way, then after fighting her way back, got swept away again.

One of the people bending over Ms. VanLester tried to lift her up a little. She was unconscious. Don't do it, somebody else said, but she went ahead anyway. Ms. VanLester was on her stomach. Under her, in the ripped bag, was the DVD player and the printer cartridge she had bought, both undamaged.

"Call an ambulance," somebody shouted. A few cell phones came out.

There were some children with the woman who had lifted Ms. VanLester. "Can we have it, Mom?" one of them asked.

"Take the DVD player," Ms. Ellzey shouted over the surging crowd. "That's all you want." The woman put Mrs. VanLester back down. And with her children, but without the DVD, walked quickly inside.

Ten minutes later, when the paramedics arrived, there were still swarms of shoppers rushing in and out of the Wal-Mart. On one side of the entrance, where Ms. VanLester lay unconscious, there was great congestion. Some people were trying to get through. Others were trying to get a look. Others were trying to guard Ms. VanLester. And there were numerous Wal-Mart associates there, not knowing quite what to do.

The paramedics tried vainly to battle their way to Ms. VanLester. They could not do it. During this battle, they radioed in for a helicopter. The arrival of the helicopter into the parking lot would bring both more medical help and would provide a distraction for the shoppers.

Eventually, Ms. VanLester was put on a gurney by the paramedics and wheeled out to the helicopter for the twenty minute flight to the emergency room parking lot at the Halifax Medical Center in nearby Daytona Beach. Her sister accompanied her.

Later, reporters went to the scene, where they interviewed other shoppers and Wal-Mart employees. At the hospital, they interviewed Ms. Ellzey and the attending physicians.

"She's suffering trauma and possible internal injuries," a doctor said. "She's conscious and hurting and pretty beaten up. There's a lot that is black and blue. She moves in and out of consciousness. She doesn't remember what happened. We are keeping her here over the weekend."

Her sister had this to say. "In the helicopter, all she kept saying was 'I want my mommy, I want my mommy.' She was delirious and she didn't recognize me. These people walked over her like a herd of elephants. All they cared about was a stupid DVD player."

At the scene, Mark O'Rourke of EVAC Ambulance was interviewed. "They would not move....They were concerned about one thing: bargain shopping."

Also at the store, Wal-Mart officials say they were unable to find any trace of either the DVD player, the bag or the receipt, though they did find the printer cartridge and what they believe to be the VanLester shopping cart.

"We are very disappointed this happened," said Karen Burk of Wal-Mart. "We want her to come back as a shopper." She told reporters they were issuing a formal apology to Ms. VanLester and were putting one DVD player aside for her to buy at the sale price at a later date "anytime."

Ms. VanLester was still in the hospital on Monday morning. At that time, Wal-Mart announced from their worldwide headquarters in Arkansas that cumulative sales nationally in all stores the day after Thanksgiving totaled $1.52 billion, a new one day record. The total in 2002 was $1.43 billion.

Technicality Allows Southampton Business To Sell Consigned Goods In Bankruptcy

By Jerry Cimisi

Imagine you bring an item, an expensive item such as jewelry, furniture or a painting, to a consignment business — and then you find out that business is going bankrupt and will sell off your goods to pay its creditors, without your getting a cent. Doesn't sound legal? Well, apparently it is. And it has happened with a Southampton concern named Morgansen's on Sunrise Highway.

Attorney William Bates of Southampton represents the estate of Esther O'Keefe, which has items valued at approximately $30,000 at Morgansen's. Bates said that the business filed for bankruptcy in February 2003 and then, in August, filed for Chapter 7 liquidation.

"In the papers they filed," Bates added, "Morgansen's listed $185,000 in stock that they owned, and $700,000 in goods that were on consignment. So it's obvious the majority of the money they could use to pay off creditors would come from items that had been left on consignment."

On October 14, Bates — and others contesting this turn of events — received unhappy news from U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Central Islip. Justice Stan Bernstein ruled that under the New York State Uniform Commercial Code, Morgansen's had a right, in paying off creditors, to use the property that had been consigned to it.

"First of all," said Bates, "We did not get notice about what was going on until September 24 — the notice was dated September 19. We didn't have time to defend ourselves properly. There was a hearing October 1, then the decithe business as Morgansen's Ltd. Auctioneers.] It says so on their website. So it would seem that the world at large knows the nature of Morgansen's business. But the judge ruled that we were unable to prove this."

Bates added, "This ruling would be understandable if, say, I brought a ring to a jewelry store that dealt mostly in its own merchandise. There would be no way for a creditor to know all of the merchandise in the store did not belong to the business. In such a case, the person leaving such a work has to file certain papers to protect his property from the type of thing that is being done at Morgansen's."

And yet, unfortunately for Mr. Bates' client and other individuals, the Uniform Commercial Code does indeed seem to favor Morgansen's. A law, in effect only since 2001, Article 9 of the code says, in part, "Goods [valued at more than $1,000] subject to claims of merchant's creditors while goods are in merchant's possession."

Attorney Wallace Davidow of Amagansett met this portion of the law with a contest on constitutional grounds. He said, "Section 10, sion on the fourteenth.

"Our position is that Morgansen's is obviously the type of business that sells items on consignment, in fact advertises itself as such, and so its creditors had to know that a sizable portion of what was in Morgansen's at any given time was the property of other people. If you look in the phone book, Morgansen's is listed as an auctioneer. [The phone book lists

Article 1 on the U.S. Constitution says that no state can pass a law that impairs obligations of a contract. My client left goods valued at $20,000 with Morgansen's before the Uniform Commercial Code went into effect. That law violated the contract my client had with Morgansen's."

But Davidow met two obstacles in appealing the judge's decision. "Judge Bernstein cited me for contempt of court — because I said this was a kangaroo court. I wasn't saying this against the judge, but against the law. The law did not give opportunity for a trial on this matter, did not give us opportunity to cross examine parties involved in this process of the bankruptcy. I sent the judge an apology, again stressing my complaint was with the law, not him. If he does not accept it, I could be fined or censured."

(By the time you read this, Mr. Davidow will have found out what the judge thinks, as his contempt of court matter will have been heard on December 3.)

And in fact, Davidow had to withdraw his appeal, anyway. His client's property is no longer at Morgansen's.

"It was only last Monday — November 24 — that my client and I were able to gain access to Morgansen's to see property. And it was not there. I can only assume it has already been sold. So the appeal is moot. I had to withdraw it."

Virginia Pepper of Southampton has her own unfortunate story. "My mother passed away. I wanted a number of items appraised. I left them with Morgansen's in June. I had no idea they had already filed for bankruptcy. No one told me. No one told me my property might be at risk. I was giving Morgansen's items when they were getting notices to vacate.

"I rented my house out for the summer. It was my intention to come back in the fall and whatever sold that was great, and what didn't I would have an appraised value for it. I know they did sell a 1790 table of mine for $8,000. They were supposed to get ten percent. So I was supposed to get $7,200; but I never got any of it."

Ms. Pepper estimates that the total value of the five items she left was in the area of $25,000-$30,000.

"I only found out about the bankruptcy when I came back here at the end of September. I wasn't notified. Most of us weren't. Some of us found out only days before the decision; some of us not until afterward. I didn't find out about the court's decision until October 20, six days after it was issued. And what I found out when I looked at the court papers was that the bankruptcy proceedings listed the names and addresses of all non-consignment creditors — so only they were notified about the proceedings, not those who had consignment items there."

Ms. Pepper was also given access to Morgansen's on November 24. She said, "I found one item of furniture. They were still cleaning the place up. I didn't look thoroughly through two rooms upstairs; if they had been cleared out maybe I would have found something else of mine."

Though the point remains that anything of hers she found, she would not be able to reclaim. She said, "It's as if I brought my dog to the vet and the vet went out of business and they had a right to sell my dog to the vet's creditors. It's obviously not right. And just think about what this is going to do to the business of other consignment places in the area. Who would take the chance of leaving anything with anyone? You could walk in with your grandfather's watch; five minutes later creditors put a padlock on the door and you have lost your property. How could this be legal? But it's happening."

Felicia Branescu, the owner of Morgansen's, reached us just before press time.

She said, "I am in complete agreement with those who feel their property is being taken from them unfairly. It was never my intention for this to happen. I had filed a plan with the bankruptcy court that everyone who had items on consignment at Morgansen's would be notified and they could pick them up in ten days. But Judge Bernstein said that is not the way things are done in a bankruptcy, and he assigned a trustee to oversee it. So my wishes were ignored."

Ms. Branescu, who said the first year or two of the business went fine, added that after 9/11, things took a negative turn. "This is a business failure, not a moral failure on my part. I worked seven days a week for four years, put all my capital in it and then some. It's not a wonderful situation for anybody, and it's terrible for me as well. It's a great disappointment."

hand on my shoulder and replied, "Oh... we'll talk."

The truth is, Frazer Dougherty and wife Frances Ann built this place three years ago not for guys like me, but for much larger projects with more recognizable (they can hardly be less) names. The idea was, that with all the entertainment industry movers that spend at least part of their year in the Hamptons a sound stage would be a perfect fit, whereby they could either combine their work and play time or choose to spend a bigger part of their year out here making movies, TV shows, videos, etc. It was called Pinewood West Studios then, until people on another continent had a problem with that and the name was recently changed to East Hampton Studios.

It doesn't matter.

Frazer and Frances Ann pulled this place off extremely well, and there's a beautiful facility just sitting here in East Hampton now. And that's the problem. It's sitting here and still waiting for someone to put a ring on her finger or buy her a cup of coffee or at least wink or something.

When I first met Frazer, he told me about this – how the trick of luring activity to East Hampton Studios had been more elusive and uphill than he imagined. And today his story is much the same. There have been some very big names that have passed through from time to time, from Jimmy Buffett to Jack Nicholson to Barry Sonnenfeld. But in three years, this place has yet to become self-sustaining. Back when I learned about it, it actually seemed fortuitous how circumstances made for an incredible opportunity for me. But today... well, it just flat-out sucks to know that the studio is still struggling to find its feet.

Truthfully, I'm not really sure why business has yet to get going at East Hampton Studios. I'm not experienced enough in the filmmaking industry – particularly big budget filmmaking – to know all the issues involved. From what I understand, a significant challenge has been the distance of the studio from Manhattan and the ramifications this has on union contracts and pay scales. In simplest terms, if people travel a little further for work, they want to be paid a little more. And that tends to scare off those with the checkbooks. It's a very real issue, and one that some good-intentioned players have struggled with, in trying to bring life to this place. Beyond that, perhaps people aren't so crazy after all about the idea of conducting work in the Hamptons and would prefer to keep this area as strictly a social getaway. I don't know. And of course, there's always the shrug-of-the-shoulders explanation when what seems like a foolproof idea just doesn't pan out sometimes and it's never quite clear why.

There are lots of questions I wish I could answer about East Hampton Studios but can't, and I know I'm not alone. In the end, maybe the mega-budget productions, with all their stops and starts, will find a way to make this facility work for them, and everyone will be happy. Or maybe that day will be too long in coming.

Or, if there are enough $1-5 million independent projects out there (with the "full speed ahead" attitude that usually comes with them) maybe they will be attracted to the same qualities about this place that were perfect for us – the people, the operation, the location, the atmosphere – and would fill it with a steady stream of indie projects throughout the year. Or videos, music recordings, TV programs, concerts, etc. And maybe the future of East Hampton Studios could be as a home for a bunch of dreamy artists, after all.

All I'm sure of is that if our next project went from a $150,000 budget to $1 million (or God willing, $4-5 million). I'd be back the next day at 7 a.m. talking with Frazer about where to drop the dumpster and which phone lines are ours. And the next time around, we'd book our shoot right about this time of year so we would have Highway 27 to ourselves, rent accommodations for next-to-nothing, and then I could even buy my mom's Christmas gift from an East Hampton store (or at least her card).

These were the things that made our relationship with East Hampton Studios work, and why I hope it can work again someday. Hopefully, the studio can hold on long enough to connect with those artists and decision-makers that would see the same value and benefits. This place was built by a 77-year-old man (now 80) who still dreams and goes to work everyday, and is well aware of all the bullshit that happens when you do. There's been no shortage of that, I guess. But the lights are still on and the doors still open. Keep pushing, Frazer. Maybe one day we'll get there. •

Authors Writing About The Hamptons

Marilee Foster of Southampton, a farmer's wife, is the author of the book Dirt Under My Nails, which was published this year to great reviews. Following is the first chapter of this book.

Dirt Under My Nails

By Marilee Foster

Winter

A dusting of snow that takes all day to settle makes me feel at home in December. With snow there is no reason to resent the cold. With now the ground is luminous and night is held off. There are no shadows.

The next morning, snow gives away secrets. No one sees the cat that slips under a broken board and into the cluttered shed. It is the little footprints she leaves behind that betray her.

The guinea hens are nowhere in sight, but they too have left paths. They have scattered randomly from their coop and across the lawn. But they tend to gather about the doorways. By the side porch, the back porch, the front porch and even the glass slider, their congregation has turned the snow to slush. They shove their breasts at one another, they jockey and slip to get a better view of the something inside.

Perhaps themselves reflected in the glass? The polka-dotted birds will spend the day like mercury – rolling, scattering and rejoining. The seeds of frozen bittersweet and plumes of unexpected purple, the droppings of other creatures, bleed into the surface of the guinea hens' tramping.

Sagg Pond went out again last week, leaving it so low and the mud so saturated that it reflects the sky. From where I sit, I can watch twenty blue herons as they make minor flights, really suspended leaps, from one side of their statuesque neighbor to the other. They too are mirrored by the mud; every move has a mime beneath it. Herons do an inevitable lanky dance.

Really, we went almost all year without the so to some of his fellow movie stars who frequent the store. They specifically mentioned Alec Baldwin, Sandra Bullock, Harrison Ford, Matt Dylan, Julia Roberts, Cindy Crawford, Julie Andrews, Tom Arnold, Rick Moranis, Claudia Schiffer, Sarah Jessica Parker, Matthew Broderick and Regis Philbin.

"I told Ed Burns I'm a professional extra but would be happy to be in any film he did for free and would travel anywhere in the world to do it, and he promised he'd let me know."

I asked which public figure made the biggest stir when they came into the Sagaponack General Store.

"Without a doubt, Colin Powell. He stopped traffic when he was in the store. Kim Basinger might be in. But people wanted to see Colin Powell."

"Any filmmaking plans in Florida?" I asked Bob.

"I'm meeting with my agent," he said.

"Geometry" Necklace
$4,999

Luxuries

With Maria Tennariello

Getting ready for the Christmas holidays? Get ready, get set, get going by giving the one you love this outstanding example of the geometric design of the Art Deco era. This style of jewelry remains as popular today as it was in the 1920s. The one-of-a-kind bracelet is seven and a half-inches in length, designed in platinum, with diamonds (15.0 carats) and rubies (15 carats). A very special gift for any occasion.

Available exclusively at Gems of the Past, 60 Newtown Lane, East Hampton. 631-324-GEMS.

Art Deco bracelet
$20,000

This is a gift that makes a presentation. Peter Storm's "Geometry" diamond drop necklace employs vintage motifs that were inspired by the Edwardian era known for lacy open work in precious platinum with diamonds that are combined with a Cubist feel of the 1920s and 1930s. There are three diamond clusters in the shapes of two squares and a round – (for a total weight of 1.14 carats) that dangle from an 18 carat white gold chain with three diamond squares running up the length. The squares are made of princess diamonds and the round shape with round diamonds, all of high color and clarity.

Available at Rose Jewelers, 57 Main Street, Southampton. 631-283-5757, and 74 East Main Street, Patchogue.

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander #277 One Flu Over the Cuckoos Nest

Joanne Sherman, who writes for the excellent Shelter Island Reporter, is one of my personal favorite writers. I cracked up as I read her column this week which talks about battling the flu armed with a babushka. But she's right, it is flu season and we have to use every weapon in all arsenals, from modern medical science to ancient druidic rituals. Anything is worth a try because nothing is worth having the flu, and the older we get, the worse we suffer.

I did thorough research to uncover some popular cures and methods for preventing the flu.

From traditional American folk medicine: 1. "Crush a clove of garlic, add a teaspoon of vinegar and a teaspoon of honey, repeat every hour." Well, I think this will work because by the third dose, the scent of garlic will be coming out of your pores and no one, including infected people, will come near you, hence preventing the flu. 2. "A half teaspoon of colloidal silver for kids and a teaspoon for adults can be swallowed to ease or eliminate flu symptoms. If you take colloidal silver regularly, you may never get the flu." I don't know what colloidal silver is, but colloidal sounds too much like hemorrhoidal, so I think I'll skip this cure. 3. "At the first sign of a flu, put a few drops of 3% hydrogen peroxide into each ear, one ear at a time. Keep the solution in for 10 minutes or until the bubbling stops. Your temperature should start dropping within minutes, and your flu should be gone within 12 to 14 hours. NOTE: Do not put liquids into your ears if you have a ruptured ear drum." I do not like the idea of foaming at the mouth, I'm certainly not going to go for foaming at the ear. And what's with the warning not to foam up a ruptured ear drum? Will the peroxide eat straight through to the other ear? How will stupid people know the difference? 4. "Elderflowers when dried are good for making tea, for use against colds and flu. It tastes horrid! My aunt used to combine them with peppermint (even worse!)." Well, if elderberry tea tastes horrible but works well, what about pouring it into the little hole in your brain the peroxide drops just made? Flushes the peroxide and administers a cure simultaneously, plus your pepperminty fresh ears will attract attention! 5. "In southern Colorado and New Mexico a plant called osha ...common names are bear root, cough root and cuchupate. The hairy root is either chewed or made into a tincture to treat colds and flu, while the greens are used for flavoring. The active ingredients are not water-soluble. Keeping a piece of the root in your pocket is said to keep rattlesnakes away." Well, something called cuchupate at least sounds like expectorate so I think this has potential. Plus, I am encouraged by its side benefit of rattlesnake abeyance. There are many cures for snakebites, usually 50 proof and above, but this is the first I've seen a cure to keep them away completely.

From around the world I discovered a few other cures for the flu. 1. There is a Thai cure that involves boiling coriander seeds, monkey fur and coconut. I don't know where to begin to express my thoughts on this cure, but they start with, how do I know where that monkey has been? 2. There is a cure in Russia that starts with vodka, hold the monkey fur. You drink a total of ten ounces of vodka a day for four days and at the end of four days, miraculously, the flu is gone! 3. India says to drink curry tea and eat heavily curried foods to sweat it out. I've had Indian hot curry foods before.... I'll take the flu. 4. People in Iceland make a tea from ground reindeer horn, a batch of local roots and some add a little baby urine. Well, I have standards, if I won't boil monkey fur, I'm certainly not grinding reindeer horns....I don't even know how to get them to stand still...

On the other hand, I could just get a flu shot...

experience the possibilities

Step into the Perimeters showroom and experience the luxury of being able to design your home just the way you always wanted. ripe smell of mud. I, having just returned from the confines of a convention center, take deep breaths of this odor, tamping it into the bottom of my lungs. I do not consider that from where I stand at White Walls, the place where the road crosses the estuary, this effort might gag me. It does not. The cold air diminishes the stench. The waft of the drained flats provides a kind of fingerprint, a unique muck, all our own.

Though the emptiness of what was the pond has its benefits, seeing it so frequently makes me unhappy. There has been at least one public meeting on the topic of ousting the phragmites, the invasive, perennial wetland grass that surrounds the pond. It is generally agreed that the horrid reed has unsurpassed valuable and attractive vistas. But before we go ripping them out by the roots, we should look for reasons why the non-native has successfully homogenized the pond shore. You could say that the phragmites are like corporate franchises. With diversity and energy, they have trounced indigenous competition. But we must acknowledge our part in the aggressor's success. We have unwittingly contributed to the propagation of phragmites by making the environment less and less comfortable for the native species, specifically cattails and mallows, because we dig, dig, dig our pond. Every time Sagg Pond is emptied into the Atlantic, thereby permitting the incoming tides to enter, salty effusions overwhelm the brackish marsh. Thus, the equilibrium is tilted in favor of the phragmite, which is eager to settle in and spread out.

Elsewhere, however, reclamation is possible. On Saturday a crew of gloved hands descended on Poxabogue Cemetery. They tore back the overgrown edges, uncovered lost stones, and the place is suddenly large and waiting. I suspect that those who have regularly passed this burying ground have never known it was there until now. I go there today to find the grave that has been described to me by tombstone aficionados. Two daughters are buried there and while they share the stone, individual inscriptions are kept to either side, like pages of a book. The prayer for them is shared, etched across the entire bottom and does not heed the invisible spine. "Lie sleep sweet babes, until we meet again..." The rest of the passage has sunk into the ground and I feel improper even pressing the grass to try to read on.

North Fork Critics' Choice 2003

The "Best Of The Best" Of Our Dining Destinations

And The Winner Is...

I think it is safe to say that Dan's Papers annual Best of the Best contest has indeed achieved institution status on the East End, and while we all know it's not who wins or loses, it's still a lot more fun to win. And speaking of winners, this year's lucky award recipients are spotlighted below. Just look for the designation at the end of each restaurant description, and follow the key to find out who won what. The list is impressive, but then so are today's dining options here on the North Fork.

—Susan W. Simm, Dan's North Fork Editor

Bayview Inn & Restaurant. Culinary fireworks from a new sparkler facing Peconic Bay. The historic Bayview has undergone many identity changes since its inception as an 1860's boutique hotel. Owners Bob and Pat Patchell have restored its original spirit, with seven guestrooms and the North Fork's most exciting new dining room. Thomas Lopez creates separate specials menus, complementing his regular card of winners like spinach pasta with chunky lobster, Asian-style breast of duck, and marinated lamb chops in mint demi-glace. Scrumptious desserts and a kid's menu ensure everyone goes home (or upstairs) happy. South Jamesport Ave. and Front Street, South Jamesport. 722-2659. Entrees, $18-$26. (Trueman-Honey, 8/1/03). [Di,S,Sh]

Cooperage Inn. With a beautiful new look emphasizing the cooperage theme, this charmer continues to carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Chef/owner Jonathan Perkins, along with chefs Laimo and Hegeman, produce inspired appetizers such as rare sesame tuna carpaccio and pan-seared fresh mozzarella, and don't miss the sesame crusted calamari served over field greens with a soy vinaigrette. Steaks are steakhouse worthy, and the rigatoni ala vodka continues to dazzle. Fish here is always pristine and cooked with a light hand. Entrees $15.50-$30. 2218 Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm, 1/10/03). [Br,D]

Do Little's. Very welcoming and unpretentious. An excellent menu for diners interested in fresh, smartly prepared dishes that are not calorically trumped up. Thai mussels in ginger/lemongrass broth hit the mark. Excellent pasta dishes, headlined by justifiably famous Seafood Pasta in white wine sauce, filled with mussels, clams and shrimp over linguine with fresh tomatoes and spinach. Stuffed ravioli with sun-dried tomatoes and mozzarella is beautifully done. Sensibly priced wine list, with a knowing nod to local vintages. Entrees, $12.95-$19.95. Rt. 25, Mattituck Plaza, Mattituck. 298-4000. (Bradbrook, 7/28/01). [F, Mu]

Desmond's Pub & Restaurant at the Inn at East Wind. The North Fork's new destination hotel hosts an elegant and restful dining room serving excellent a la carte dishes and classic pub fare. Executive chef Richard Laurelli's daily specials are consistent standouts, as evidenced by his chilled vegetable soup with lobster meat, as well as the Andalusia-style beef and chicken tapas. Pub favorites like crisply battered cod and chips hit the mark and familiar entrees like grilled lamb chops are perfectly prepared. The wine list is sensibly priced, though short on local vintages. Blueberry creme brulee was an inventive and winning update on a classic dessert. Entrees, $16-$26. 5720 Rt. 25A, Wading River. 929-3500. (Bradbrook, 8/29/03). [Pu]

Fauna. A hip and elegant culinary gem. Co-owner and consulting chef Mark Mittelman's menu astutely incorporates Asian influences into superbly conceived New American dishes. Tuna sashimi shines as an appetizer, as does duck confit atop sautéed spinach with walnuts and dried cranberries. Try and find room for the butternut squash pot stickers. The all-star cast of entrees includes Southeast Asian steak salad, pan-roasted bourbon chicken and a Napoleon of roasted vegetables. Desserts rotate daily. Extensive wine list with sixteen local vineyards. Entrees $20-$26. Route 25, Aquebogue. 722-5813. (Trueman-Honey, 6/7/02). [Ap,M,Sp,Tu]

Ile de Beaute. In a beautiful old house with courtyard tables, the spirit of Provence is alive in Greenport with highly authentic French cuisine. Its treatment of classics like escargots, French onion soup, and frogs' legs runs the gamut from superb to extraordinary. Rack of lamb, served with rosemary sauce reduction, is masterly. Desserts are tasty and the crepe options are best expressed in exponential notation. Service is deliberate but attentive. Entrees $24-35. 314 Main Street, Greenport. (Bradbrook, 7/12/02). [Cou,Cr,E]

La Cuvée Wine Bar & Bistro at the Greenporter Hotel. Gourmet bistro dining adjoining a hip boutique hotel footsteps from Greenport's vibrant downtown. The casually upscale dining room creates a pleasing environment for a light and adventurous menu. Seafood appetizers like tuna tartar and the sublime mussels in coconut and lemongrass broth bear an unmistakable Asian influence. But executive chef/owner Deborah Rivera's culinary artistry really announces itself when the entrees arrive. Long Island duck in an orange-infused coconut sauce is impressive enough, but topped by her otherworldly

Chilean Sea Bass poached in a miso-sesame broth. Exceptional wine list, with by-the-glass offering many pleasant surprises. Entrees, $21-$26. 326 Front Street, Greenport. 477-0066. (Bradbrook, 4/25/03). [B,Wi]

La Plage. Exciting and imaginative haute cuisine just steps away from a Long Island Sound beach. Chef/owner Wayne Wadington's menu undergoes constant revision, reflecting his selection of premium ingredients or his latest inspiration for a sauce. His creations fly off the menu almost as quickly as off the plate, but if you have the chance, put in for the Yukon Gold potato soup with an oyster beignet, the roulade of local crab with succulent micro greens or the Griggstown Farm quail in smoked bacon. Superb wine list. Exceptional desserts. Entrees $22-33. 131 Creek Road, Wading River. 744-9200. (Bradbrook, 11/1/02). [Ap,Ch]

Modern Snack Bar. Home-cooked meals away from home await you at this charming family-run restaurant operating since 1950. Wittmeier brothers' time-honored menu contains dishes too good to go out of style. Delectable sauerbraten is perfectly tender and the stuffed cabbage very good. Duck breast salad, recently introduced, is another winner. Crab cakes and lobster salad are real treats, but the big surprise is the world-class shrimp and crabmeat quiche. Home-baked desserts are splendid and their take-out pie business is brisk. Wines are mostly limited to local vintages. Reservations not needed, but day or night, it's always a crowded house. Entrees, $9-$17. Rt. 25 Aquebogue. 722-3655. (Bradbrook, 10/4/02). [Co,So]

Red Door. Red Alert! Stephan Mazzella, formerly of Lespinasse, has opened a fine new restaurant in Mattituck. His menu is quite versatile and his consistently tasty dishes excite the palate. Typically adventurous and successful is the pan-seared monkfish with a yellow tomato sauce and black olive purée topped by crispy fried leeks. Mazzella's treatment of fish epitomizes Greek and Italian-style preparation at its best. The appetizer of heirloom tomatoes with bocconcini mozzarella and fresh basil and balsamic vinegar is a tomato dish for the ages. Innovative desserts, too. Entrees - $16-$28. 13560 Main Rd., Mattituck. 298-4800. (Bradbrook, 6/14/02). [D]

Ross' Rotisserie and Smokehouse. A casual, homey eat-in or take-out spot opened by John Ross, former chef/owner of Ross' North Fork Restaurant. Great rotisserie and crispy fried

Holiday Cheer At Paumanok Vineyards

On November 30, CBS Sunday Morning News aired a segment featuring Charles Massoud, owner and winemaker of the two-decade old Paumanok Vineyards in Aquebogue. Paumanok, without question one of the North Fork's preeminent wineries, was founded in 1983 by the Massoud family and has since produced an impressive number of award-winning local wines.

During the segment, Massoud showed John Brecher and Dorothy Gaiter, wine columnists for the Wall Street Journal, how a small vineyard achieves this level of success.

"Winemaking is actually a farming activity," Charles says. "[It is] about growing high quality fruit. The riper the fruit, the better the wine. And, if you have very ripe fruit... it's going to turn into wine. Your job is not to make mistakes."

It appears that Charles has made few mistakes over the years. The 77 acre estate is owned and managed by Charles, his wife Ursula, and their three sons, and plantings consist of Chardonnay, Johannisberg Riesling, Sauvignon Blanc, Chenin Blanc, Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon and Cabernet Franc.

In an airy tasting room with panoramic views of the vineyards, Paumanok's current vintages, excellent gifts for the holidays all, can be sampled. Recommended wines currently available include: the 2002 Chenin Blanc, off-dry with wonderful tropical fruit flavors ($15), the 2000 Assemblage ($36), a big, smoky Bordeaux-style blend, the 2000 Cabernet Sauvignon Grand Vintage, touted by The New York Times as being "full bodied and full of flavor" ($39), and the 2001 Barrel Fermented Chardonnay, rated 86 by the Wine Spectator, which concluded that the wine's "spicy finish... draws you back for another sip." Also highly recommended are the vineyard's late harvest wines.

This weekend, December 6 & 7, Paumanok Vineyards (722-8800) will be participating in the First Annual Aquebogue, Jamesport, Laurel, (AJL) Business Association's Christmas Wine Tour. See our North Fork Events listings this issue for details. Cheers.

chicken; marinated, honey-glazed duck legs; hickory-smoked spareribs; homemade soups and chowders; many cooked-from-scratch side dishes. Every Friday fish fry is an excellent value. A special 6-pound LI duck, cooked crisp, boned and quartered, accompanied by duck sauce and a garnish of apricots and cranberries ($19.99) is available by reservation the day before. Open 7 days 12-8. Route 48, Southold, 765-9655. (Simm, 10/5/01). [So,T]

The Seafood Barge. The North Fork restaurant for fish lovers. Owner/manager team of Dick Ehrlich and Betsey Flinn are as fanatical about results as Steinbrenner/Torre. Newly imported executive chef Michael Meehan updates the menu's standards and introduces several of his own specialties. Vichyssoise spiked with crab meat and basil oil was a rousing success. Marinated baby octopus with baby spinach was succulent and tender. As for the fish, the sushi appetizer continues to be stellar. The pan-seared striped bass with a red pepper broth is a revelation. Desserts are sensational. Excellent wine list, particularly local vintages. Entrees $24-$32. Port of Egypt Marina, Rt. 25, Southold. 765-3010. (Bradbrook, 7/26/02). [Lo,Se,Su]

The Shady Lady Restaurant. The Zorn family's vision of stately elegance comes to the North Fork in this grandly unique dining room. Two rooms actually, with dinner jackets de rigueur in the Scarlet Room and a more casual ambience pervading the lodge-like Pine Room. The menu keeps pace with the opulence of the surroundings. Chef Ross Essner's cosmopolitan cooking style is globally savvy, but local-ingredient particular. Especially breathtaking is the lobster risotto with diver scallop and asparagus. A superb cheese plate complements the dessert choices and the wines are as excellently-chosen as they are reasonably-priced. 305 North Road, Greenport. 477-4500. Entrees,

$28-$38. (Bradbrook, 7/18/03). [A,Cu,Ser,Spe,W]

Stonewall's. Haute cuisine in a tranquil setting, at the Woods Course at Cherry Creek in Riverhead. Step into the warm and inviting dining room, however, and your thoughts will happily shift from golf course to main course. Many superb entrees, including the delicate halibut in a mustard-nut crust, are worth savoring long after the meal has concluded. Duck à l'orange on a bed of wild rice is another standout as is the deeply flavorful lobster bisque. Rigatoni with roasted tomatoes, mozzarella, capers and olives is exquisitely al dente. Fine wines and creatively fruity desserts complete a dining experience par excellence. Entrees $15-$27. 967 Reeves Ave., Riverhead. 506-0777. (Bradbrook, 9/12/03). [Lu,N]

Sultan's Kitchen. At last, a good, authentic Eastern Mediterranean for the region. The emphasis is on Turkish cooking, one of the world's healthiest cuisines. The spacious dining room is non-descript, as this is a former pancake emporium; the subtleties are all in the flavoring of the food. Soups such as red lentil and tripe are spiced just right. The varied appetizers favor vegetarians while the main courses concentrate on lamb and chicken, often with delectable results. Turkish baklava and kadayif are exceptional finishing touches. Entrees $6.50-$15.95. 1077 Old Country Road, Riverhead. 369-9766. (Bradbrook, 8/9/02). [Me,V]

Touch of Venice. Top-notch Italian cuisine in a delightful setting on Mattituck Inlet. Named appropriately for location, cuisine and a large mural dominating the dining room, this is family dining par excellence with a sophisticated ambience. Among the kitchen's highlights: Orient Point oysters, chilled but not icy; baby spinach salad with gorgonzola; black angus porterhouse. Manicotti in a fresh, simple tomato sauce is among the many pleasing pasta dishes. Lobster Meat over angel hair pasta, a frequent special, is an exciting dish of imaginative complexity and one of the North Fork's perennial favorites. Cold seafood bruschetta is another special to watch for. Entrees $16-$34. Wickham Avenue at Matt-A-Mar Marina, Mattituck. 298-5851. (Bradbrook, 8/16/02). [L,O]

Tuscan House. Your table is yours for the evening at this elegant, upscale Italian. Authentic, classical dishes bear the deft touch of chef William Oster. His fish is exceptionally fresh and his osso bucco masterly. But his virtuosity lies in the care with which he pairs his 16 pastas and his sublime sauces. The results range from delicate to intense. Pappardelle with a puree of beans dressed with soppressata, fresh chilies, garlic and parmigiano reggiano is typically adventurous and winning. The dessert tray is filled with excellent choices. Well-chosen wines, emphasis on regional Italians. 673 Osborn Ave., Riverhead. 727-2330. (Bradbrook, 9/7/01). [C,I,P]

Tweed's. Owner Ed Tuccio parlayed his interests in history, Americana and the bison to create this unique eatery. The décor puts one in mind of an expensive turn-of-the-century men's club, but with a romantic twist. Notable appetizers include Oysters Portland, enveloped in sautéed leeks and crisp bacon, and the Bistro Salad, redolent of blue cheese and roasted beets. Aside from Tweed's excellent specialty of the house, succulent farm-raised bison, also recommended are the Sashimi Sesame Tuna, carb-free vegetable lasagna, and Duck Two Ways. Don't skip dessert: the pastry chef is a graduate of the Cordon Bleu in London. Entrees $19-26. 17 E. Main St., Riverhead. 208-3151. (Trueman-Honey, 7/04/03). [St].

Away At School... By David Lion Rattiner

STRAIGHT BACK

I think that just about every kid, at some point or another, gets taught by one of their teachers that they should sit up straight. Generally, it goes something like this – the teacher will see you in class not sitting up straight, then walk over to where you are sitting and give you some sort of lesson about posture. “You know young man, if you keep sitting like that your back is going to grow crooked and you will never get tall.”

After they tell you that, they will then point out one of the other children in the class with better posture than you and say something like, “Try to sit up like so and so,” and then go back to teaching about the digestive system.

A lot of the time people are taught the importance of standing up straight in a different way. Standing up straight is usually taught by parents, I think. With the boys, it is taught by the Dads. “Stand up straight, you look like an idiot!” With the girls it is taught by their Moms. “Shoulders back, chin up, that’s the way a lady walks,” (I think I have heard that somewhere, maybe I just made it up) and then they walk around the house for a bit, practicing.

As for me, I was taught to sit up straight only once, in sixth grade by my teacher Mrs. McSweeney at Springs Elementary School. Mrs. McSweeney liked to put the desks in different groups, each group with a different name that she would let us, as a group, decide on. My group of desks, with five kids, was named The Looney Toons. The Looney Toons consisted of me and four girls, all with perfect posture. One day, we were working together on a group project. I think it was a presentation that we, as a group, were going to have to give about the book A Wrinkle In Time, which is, by the way, one of my personal favorites. Anyway she came over to me and told me to sit up straight, like everyone else. The girls giggled, I felt like an idiot, and I sat up.

I think that the year of sixth grade was the first and last year that I ever sat up straight in a chair. I don’t know what happened after that. Even now as I type this article I am slouching. If I sit up straight, I will get pain in my lower back. I feel extremely unnatural sitting up straight. It is one of the weirdest things I think a person has to do. We should be allowed to slouch, it should be the norm. Why the heck do they have to make my life hard and make me sit up straight?

Well, I guess I know the answer to this question. The first thing is that you look weak when you slouch. You look like you are lazy and that you don’t really want to be there and that you are tired. The second reason is that if you slouch all the time, your back muscles will get used to the slouching and every time you try to sit up straight you will get pain in your lower back. It’s awful, I can tell you that.

Standing up straight is a different story. Standing up straight has more to do with self confidence than with looking like an idiot. The main problem for me and standing up straight is not my back, but my height. For some reason, standing up straight does not hurt all that much, but sitting up straight hurts like hell. The main reason I do not want to stand up straight is because I am tall, standing at around 6’4”. Sometimes I am 6’6” but this only happens when I am around a guy that is 6’1” and claims to be 6’3”. Anyway, tall guys feel weird standing up straight. When a tall guy stands up straight, everybody knows it. They are probably thinking, “Look at that jerk over there standing up straight and being tall. Who does he think he is?”

Well, I don’t think I am anybody. I just heard that it was important to stand up straight so that I don’t have back problems, but this guy over here is making me feel self conscious for being tall so now I want to slouch and try to look at him at his eye level for no other reason than to make him happy and to make my heart stop beating so fast from nervousness. What’s the matter with me? I should be proud to be tall and I should sit up straight at dinner, for crying out loud.

So that does it! I’m going to stand up straight, and when I sit, I am going to sit up straight. I don’t care how embarrassed I get. I don’t care how much it hurts. I don’t care how many sit-ups I have to do or mean eyes I get from mean guys shorter than me.

What a world we live in, man. Even the tall guys get the short end of the stick these days.

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

What would Santa drive? Several years ago, as host of a holiday television segment for News 12 Long Island, I compared Santa's sleigh to a Hummer H1. Today, I still feel that Santa would drive the military clone Hummer H1, not the H2 because the H1 is bigger and available with a diesel engine which gives it slightly better gas mileage. But the H1 is nowhere as comfortable as the newer non-military version. But let's face facts – the portly man in red is used to flying around in a topless sleigh in frigid weather conditions. Comfort is not a priority with this guy.

Off-season is another story. When it warms up, Santa tools around in a new Chrysler Sebring convertible. The big guy really wants a five liter Mustang ragtop, but he is a little too rotund to fit into the drivers seat of that hot rod. For the record, of course all of Santa's vehicles are ruby red.

Mrs. Santa Claus, during the winter months, has a fleet of very comfortable off-road vehicles at her disposal. In more temperate weather, Mrs. Claus drives the new, feminine-looking Volkswagen Cabriolet. All of the public relations departments of the world's automobile manufacturers "lend" cars to Mr. and Mrs. Claus. Let's face it, what a PR coup it would be to have paparazzi shooting photos of the Claus family driving one of their products.

That's why, in the Claus garage, there sits a Range Rover, Cadillac Escalade, a BMW X5 and a new porsche Turbo Cayanne. Very few people, with the exception of a select group of elves, know that Mrs. Claus has a wild side. On a snowy night she loves to take out the Cayanne and do power slides around the parking lot of the toy factory.

Speaking of elves, it's obvious that off-season they all drive Minis. Not the new one, it's too big. They prefer the 60s Mini Coopers. They are elfishly fanatical about their cars, set up with driving lights, wheel arches and minilite rallye wheels. The next time, on the rare occasion that a Cooper S passes you on the expressway, look very carefully at who's driving. If he is small and has pointy ears, it's one of Santa's helpers, or Ross Perot.

On the subject of “snow” cars, until the advent of the many different models of four wheel drive SUVs, there were certain cars that one bought because they were good in the snow. Probably the most famous early snow car was the Saab. Saab was one of the biggest selling automobiles in the snow belt states because it was one of the first mass produced vehicles with front wheel drive. Because of its uncanny surefootedness in the white slippery stuff, in the 50s and 60s Saab was a very famous European Rallye champion. Driven by the legendary Swedish Rallye driver Erik “on the roof” Carlsson, Saab won many events. These were tough races held in ice and snow conditions, so you can imagine how Carlsson’s nickname originated. Another obscure fact is that the Saab 99 was not only the first turbocharged passenger car, but also the first-ever turbocharged model to win a world championship event.

One of my daily drivers for many years was a 1978 Saab 99 EMS sports sedan. It was one of the most dependable cars I have ever owned, even though it had almost 100,000 miles on the odometer. Yes, it was great in the snow.

Another great snow car was the original rear-engined, air-cooled Volkswagen Beetle. Because this lightweight vehicle had most of its weight over the rear wheels (the driving wheels), this little bug would go in most snowy conditions. It was a common sight in all of the ski areas of the world, to see hundreds of Volkswagen Beetles with skis strapped onto their roofs and rear decks. The heater and defroster stank on these air cooled bugs, but in every other way, they were truly wonderful snow-going winter cars.

With the popularity of front wheel drive, where the major weight of the car was put on the driving wheels, a lot of cars like the 1975 Volkswagen Golf/Rabbit performed well in the snow. But it wasn't until Fuji Heavy Industries introduced the first four-wheel drive Subaru that affordable and economical snow machines became available to the public. Four wheel drive certainly gives vehicles much more "bite" and traction in slippery conditions. Nothing really helps on ice. It's every car for itself in that situation.

The winter season is upon us. Please be careful when driving in the Hamptons, especially on the picturesque back roads. You don't want to end up "on the roof." Also, the big guy in red is watching and he knows if you've been bad or good. Oh, and the big guys in blue are watching too, and they have radar guns. Have a happy and safe holiday.

Shop 'til You Drop... With Maria Tennariello

Heading closer to the Christmas holiday, the stores are starting to dress up their windows for the occasion. I love to spend one evening before Christmas just strolling down all the Main Streets and picking out my favorite window dressings. Which one is yours? Email me at: shoptil@danspapers.com.

Starting out in Westhampton Beach, I stopped at one of my favorites, Pine Cone, to check out their winter sale. This shop, one of the best-kept secrets in the Hamptons, is nicely located on Glovers Lane and has been for almost fourteen years now. If you love the eclectic, you will love this store... The price range here fits everyone's pocketbook, from the ridiculous to the sublime...Pine Cone features such lines at Maitland Smith, Limoges, Halceyon Days Enamels, Provence, Costa Boda and so much more. All items are on sale for up to 50% off. What a fun shopping experience. Give Judy Garry a call at 288-8316.

Bar Boy on Montauk Highway in Hampton Bays (and Farmingdale) is the place to shop for some holiday in store specials...I found a few that certainly caught my eye, and I'm sure you will agree that the nostalgic popcorn, cotton candy, ice-cream makers, hot dog carts, nacho machines all priced from $59.90 to $69.90 will too. A great gift for that special chef is the commercial style cooking stockpots that range from six quart to thirty quart that are a steal at $19.95 to $99.50. How about the Mundial fully forged stainless handle carbon blade knife set with the block (six pieces) $129.90? And for holiday entertaining, check out the commercial chafing dish, all stainless for only $39.90. Not to mention party decorations, dishes, glassware including champagne and wine glasses, flatware, wine coolers, even commercial style ranges and refrigerators, you name it, they've got it! Give a call at 728-7100.

If you're looking for a high speed children's store, kim&me on Jobs Lane in Southampton has exactly what you're looking for. Opened since October, featuring children's clothes and unique gift items for both children and adults and a vast array of specialty gifts for holiday shoppers. Look for Blanc D'Ivoire candles, room sprays, scented sachets, drawerliners, fine Italian porcelain, espresso and cappuccino cups, fine leather goods, martini glasses that will knock your sox off, rattan ice buckets, photo frames, hatboxes, custom framed original photography of local landscapes and much more. Stop in and see for yourself. You will be glad you did...

Also on Main Street in Bridgehampton is a great shop called YASO...If you are looking for the unique, it is all under one roof! Look for exciting and unique culture, interesting vintage clothing, ponchos, pants, scarves, hats, handbags, accessories, formal dress and just funky kind of stuff. The sale was extended through this weekend with 20% to 50% off the entire store. I walked out with a bag full...There is also a Grand Street, New York City location with the same sale going on...Get going, the stuff is flying out the door.

For many years now, Eugenia Bartell at the Guild Hall Gift Shop on Montauk Highway in East Hampton sends me a holiday poem and I add it to my column. I would like to share the poem this year, again.

*Christmas is coming to Guild Hall's Gift Shop this year
With many new surprises
For you and your dear!
Purses and jewelry
That dazzle and shine
Santa sure knows
What's ours can be thine!
Robots and balance toys
For all ages, great fun
Christmas cards and ornaments
Lots under our sun!
Drop in when you're free
And explore through our store
We know you'll come back
To buy more and more!*

Thanks,
Eugenia.

At Mark, Fore & Strike on Main Street in East Hampton, you must check out their holiday sale that is not to be missed! Ladies and men's cashmere sweaters are 20% off as well as wool ladies sweaters, men's lambs wool (crew and V neck) are a cool $49.90, ladies cable sweaters are $49.90, cotton cables $39.39. If you love the Michael Simon holiday sweaters, they are on sale at 20% off. You can buy a bag full here, that's for sure!

Don't miss the "By Hand" holiday artisan's gift fair on Saturday, December 6 at Ashawagh Hall on Springs Fireplace Road in East Hampton from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. This is an annual gift fair that features authentic hand made gifts such as photography, fine art, stained glass, pottery, fine jewelry, hats, scarves, soaps, children's toys and much more. Refreshments will be served and there will be an artisan's raffle to benefit Elsa's Ark Animal Rescue Fund.

After meeting a friend for lunch, we decided to stop off at Spielberg Nursery & Garden Shop on the Montauk Highway in East Hampton to take a look at their charming Christmas Gift Shoppe...Well, charming it is, it is filled to the rafters with toys, trees, ornaments, jewelry, candles, clocks, calendars, chimes, lighters, ceramics, books, sachets, albums, incense, picture frames, pens, San Diego handbags and hats, slippers, vases, stationery, tapes, bath salts, should I go on? I found a unique watering can handbag that is the perfect gift for anyone on your gift list for only $15. The ladies, men's and children's slippers are $37.75. There is a wide selection of Christmas trees, wreaths, decorations, ornaments, and a kids corner with all kinds of unique gifts. There is a seasonal 40% off sale table and hats and gloves with up to 60% off. Stop in and fill up your shopping bag.

Swinging over to Sag Harbor, I stopped in at Sylvester & Co. on Main Street for a cup of their hot, steamy coffee and found so many items here that I could have practically finished my holiday shopping. You should check out the Mother of Pearl caviar plate and spoon boxed in a handmade silk box, exclusively made for them for $69. Their gift to you with purchase: the caviar at cost, between December 15 to January 2, 2004.

BookHampton on Main Streets, Sag Harbor, Southampton, East Hampton is offering gifts for cooks this holiday season. And...there is 20% off hardcovers all the time.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Holiday Shopping!

If you know of, or are having any sales and would like to share them with me, or have any questions regarding the shops or sales, please email me at shoptil@danspapers.com or fax me at: 631-537-3330. I'd love to hear from you...

When In Manhattan...

Genius Boxes

A pair of Joseph Cornell boxes, including a rare-to-auction parrot box (untitled), recently fetched $345,500 each at Christie's. Many of us who live in the Hamptons are well versed in paying huge prices for small boxes. Usually it's the box that we live in, but in this case, no matter what your feeling about your rent is, the price may be justified. Cornell himself knew something about insular spaces. He lived and worked in the basement of his parents' modest home at 3708 Utopia Parkway, in Flushing, Queens from 1929 until his death from heart failure, at age 69, in 1972. He was born in Nyack, NY in 1903, and aside from some trips to his family's summer home in Westhampton, where his mother and sister died, he lived a reclusive existence in Queens, almost never leaving the Empire State.

Cornell's boxes portrayed something different. In them, he created miniature worlds and surreal statements that carried aesthetic beauty, as well as cohesive and thoughtful collections of ephemera and bric-a-brac culled from his many trips to Manhattan junk shops and second-hand stores. His works featured the early trappings of Pop Art, with innovations such as the multiple repetitions of photographic images years before Andy Warhol and his Marilyns, even though Cornell himself never touched a camera, or any other electronic equipment, for that matter. He did, however, make films by splicing together existing footage (Rose Hobart, 1936, was a collage version of George Melford's East of Borneo, 1931). Before that, in 1933, Cornell wrote a film scenario called Monsieur Phot (about a photographer, dedicated to Marcel Duchamp, because of Duchamp's interest in optical devices), but it was never made.

The 20 boxes on display at Richard Feigen & Co. in Manhattan are on loan from the Robert Lehrman Art Trust, and are a must see. LEgypte de Mlle Cleo de Merode Cours Elementaire d'Histoire Naturelle, ca. 1940, for example, is an exceptionally well put together piece in an old wooden hinged-top box, with the title and an image of Horus on the inside lid. The meat of the box is a collection of twelve individually labeled glass bottles that he surely intends as reference to canopic jars, filled with an assortment of treasures. It is this mixture of the visually pleasing fetish object, combined with Cornell's intelligence and deep sense of history and perfect associations, that makes his work so good. Another highlight piece Hotel de L'Etoile, ca.1950, is an example of Cornell's most complex fascination: the hotel. Complex because while Cornell led his modest life in the most lackluster of surroundings, he made many pieces about hotels. While many convey loneliness, some people say there is also a sense of exaltation, which may have stemmed from the idea of getting outside the very life he chose to live. Hotel de L'Etoile seems more of a combination of the two. The framed box looks to be a window from a battered room looking out into a starry sky on a clear summer night. In his journals about this piece, Cornell quoted T.S. Eliot's Quartets, "laughing children in the shrubbery – the moment in and out of time." Can't figure it out? Joseph Cornell was, after all, a surrealist.

Joseph Cornell's work will be on display at Richard Feigen & Co. at 34 E 69th Street, in Manhattan, until January 16. The show of 20 boxes celebrates the artist's birthday (December 24), and the release of a new book: Shadowplay...Eterniday. Gallery hours: Mon-Fri 10am-6pm, and Sat 11am-4pm. ART COMMENTARY By Marion Wolberg Weiss

While drawing has often been considered a "secondary" art form in some circles, many people realize its importance, notably as a medium for a young child's psychological development.

It has also played an important part in the evolution of an aesthetic movement, like the "Exquisite Corpse" experiment launching Surrealism. Moreover, drawing has been instrumental in the maturing of many great artists' works, such as Willem de Kooning's.

Obvious observations, true, but the more we think about it, the more we realize that without that quick sketch, many masterpieces may not have come to fruition. Nor would great events, like war, when combat artists had no camera or video available, be seen by masses.

Simply put, drawing is an art form second to none. The aesthetic advantages of the "line" and the media of crayon, chalk, and ink, for example, give it a uniqueness that cannot be duplicated.

The Parrish Museum of Art's current exhibit celebrates the valuable tradition of drawing, limiting its subject matter to the figure, an appropriate choice based on the symbiotic association with drawing. Another limitation, that the works come from the Parrish's own collection, does not seem to hamper the show's appeal or quality.

There are several studies/sketches that imply the future direction of certain artists' work: Nivola's couple in bed with their gestural, gracious curves, suggesting his signature sculptural configurations; William King's self portrait, complete with his familiar joie-de-vivre and articulated non-verbal gestures; Chaim Gross' acrobats. In all three cases, the artists' unique effects and styles could not be created without the essential "line."

The line, of course, can serve other purposes. Consider Peter Busa's geometric abstraction influenced by Native American culture. The line is primary in this piece influenced by a particular time and place during the 1950s. Jackson Pollock's 1946 drawing on the back of an envelope features a random abstract configuration, the spontaneity made possible by the flexible line.

Raphael Collazo's work, "Nest" places a female figure into an otherwise abstract puzzle, making her presence an organic entity, perhaps inferring a feminist theme.

Joan Semmel's lithograph with crayon has a definite feminist thrust; her double image suggesting perhaps women's identity crisis; a female's sense of self vs. society's representation.

The exhibition will be on view at Southampton's Parrish Art Museum until Jan. 3, 2004.

HONORING THE ARTIST: DUOLING HUANG

While a lot of artists may lead relatively exciting lives, it's unusual when their stories would make a good movie. Not so with Chinese born Forest Hills resident Duoling Huang. Her life is full of the things that keep people's attention: life under the Cultural Revolution; five years in a work camp away from family and friends; poverty and loneliness.

Painting as a way to survive.

But like a conventional Hollywood movie, Ms. Huang's story had a happy ending when she and her husband moved in the late 1970s to New York, the past never forgotten yet somehow surmounted.

Ms. Huang talks about the past, however, without bitterness, as if some experiences were necessary to make her journey meaningful, bringing her now to a peaceful place and state of mind.

Ms. Huang had a happy childhood, growing up in Beijing with six siblings and a father who was an architectural engineer. Even so, that all changed in 1966 with the Cultural Revolution. In 1968, Ms. Huang, along with her classmates, was sent to the Mongolian countryside where she worked in the fields for five years. She was sixteen at the time.

"My younger brother and I were the only children still in high school in our family, so we were sent away," Ms. Huang recalls. "But he was sent someplace else. I remember that Mongolia wasn't a pretty place, no trees, short grass. But the light was beautiful. I missed my family, my father's salary was frozen, I had no money.

"But I drew and painted to feel relieved from hard times. I had to use really rough paper; it felt like toilet paper. I especially liked when it rained or snowed because then we didn't go to work in the fields, and I could paint."

Luckily, Ms. Huang had had some experience before going to Mongolia which helped her during these trying time. She had visited her sister in art college a lot, observing diligently the students as they worked. (She also met her future husband, George Xion, there.)

Ms. Huang continues. "I taught myself to paint in Mongolia; I had no choice. I tried to imagine how the students I had observed would do something. I realized at an early age that it took basic skills to be an artist."

A defining moment came when Ms. Huang did her first color painting. "Up this point all I did was work with a pencil, but I had brought some art supplies with me, spending all the money (stipend) that is given to every student by the government. I remember the excitement I felt when I squeezed the paint from the tubes. I did a still life of apples. Each student got a pound of apples after our Moon Festival, and everyone else ate theirs. I really wanted to eat mine, too. But I painted them instead."

After five years, Ms. Huang returned to Beijing and in 1973 entered art school, buying art books through "underground" channels. After graduation, she became a college art teacher, staying for eleven years. She speaks with great fondness about those times, saying that she didn't just "lecture," but joined her students and painted with them.

Then it was off to New York with her husband and young daughter where her spouse was studying art at Brooklyn College. Ms. Huang took courses there herself, always recognizing the importance of learning.

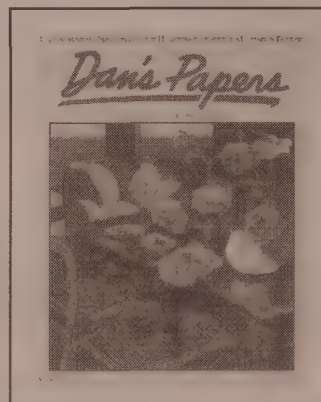

Ms. Huang has learned her lessons well, painting interior still lifes and designing textiles for the Waverly Company. Apparently, she has adjusted well to American life, noting that she finds herself "walking faster now, like New Yorkers."

Ms. Huang also tells stories about how New Yorkers have helped her out when she's gotten lost. Moreover, she seems truly moved about response to her art, noting that "People here really understand my work. They will come up to me and say how much they like it. But they have an independent spirit. They don't just follow what everybody else does."

Ms. Huang has that same independent spirit.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Huang's work can be seen at Southampton's Chrysalis Gallery.

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood 1n The Hamptons

What's happenin' in the Daily News?

It's what Hollywood's doin' to Dr. Seuss!

It's tough gettin' the hang of plain Green Ham gettin' stretched to wretched chartreuse.

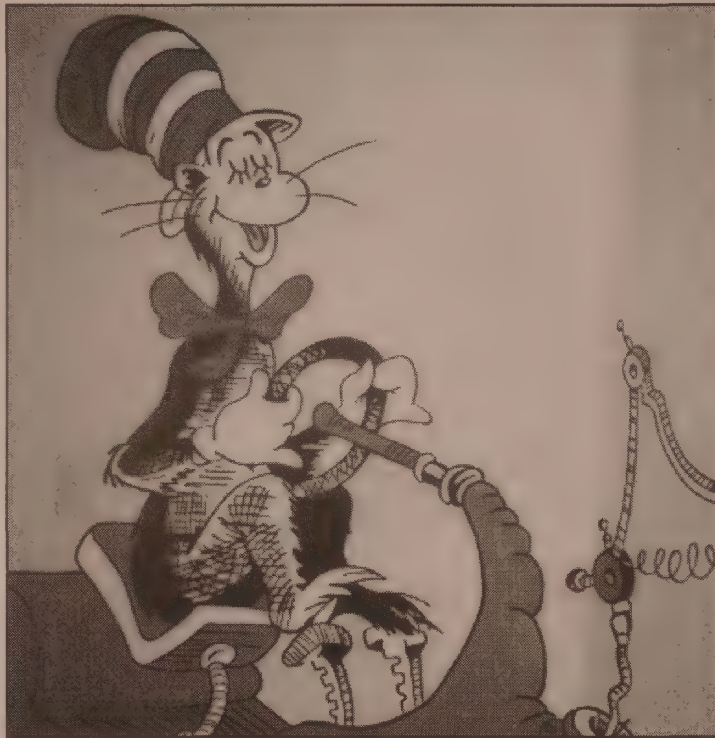

But, lynching his pink innocence 'til blotched with dark blacks and blues!

Well, to lovers of his verse, it's not only worse it's really bad noose.

In the not too distant past, Hollywood made a version of Dr. Seuss' How The Grinch Stole Christmas, that I'd have thought the author's widow, Audrey Geisel, would have distanced herself from – immediately. Instead, she gave the same producer a go-ahead for the newly released, Dr. Seuss' Cat In The Hat. The deceased writer's name used in the titles astounds me. They are so far removed from Mr. Geisel's charmers, they could have come out of the quill of Edgar A. Poe, horrors and all. If you thought the Grinch movie was an overblown mess, this Cat In The Hat is an undernourished pile of low comedy that's so low, it hardly rises above the water level in a faulty toilet bowl clogged as it is with the taste of today's Kiddies who've been Kicked, Kracked, Knocked and Knowledgeed by Krude T and Krappy films. It stars Mike Myers as the cat, in marshmallow makeup and buried in a bearish fur coat and a hairball like mix of vaudeville-cum-night club comic shtick voices that range from manic to satanic as he spits out very bad jokes that become more obnoxious when he unashamedly laughs convulsively at his own awful groaners. Trust me, he's the only one laughing.

Green and hammy (but not in the Seussian way)

is first-time directing Production Designer, Bo Welch, who should be sent back to Tim Burton movies, with his tail between his legs. What should be whimsy is so depleted of imagination, it is simply grating and chaotic. The softball team of writers have been working out of Milton Berle's and Don Rickles' tearout, throw aways, updated to include foul flatulence and skittish scatology-hum mm, sounds scientific. Don't even think of the possibility of a considered thought. Cat In The Hat is a total no brainer, not even a cell – even as it tries to delve into a bit of family therapy to add a little legitimacy to its rank awfulness. The consenting adults entangled in this tangle of abusiveness such as Alec Baldwin, Kelly Preston, and Amy Hill try real hard but they may need a clinic to restore integrity. Mike Myers must take the hardest raps on the furry paw. Not so much for his performance but for choosing material out of his excellent satirical line of work. This condescending sprawl of pandering should have immediately sent shivers up an arched back. Twenty million dollars to be zapped into a polyester creature suit and no Borcht Belt gongola ain't bad. However, how can you feel about frying a classics. You know how indigestible fried foods are stay away. This is the only "Holiday" movie that arouses bile and gas. There's Bad Santa also polluting the air of Season's Greetings.

Get into the holiday spirit. Take a holiday away from this stuff. It will help make it a Happy Holiday!

theatre review: beckett/albee... by gordin & christiano

Marian Seldes and Brian Murray were a dynamic theatrical duo in Edward Albee's The Play About the Baby, which ran at the Century Center for the Performing Arts in 2001.

These two magnificently gifted actors are returning to the scene of their triumph, where they are commanding the stage with grace and intelligence in Beckett/Albee, a collection of four short plays directed by Lawrence Sacharow.

The concept of Samuel Beckett and Edward Albee on a double bill is not new. The playwrights first appeared together on a double bill in Berlin, Germany in 1959 when Beckett's Krapp's Last Tape appeared with Albee's The Zoo Story, in German. Beckett's plays Waiting for Godot (1953), Endgame (1957), and Krapp's Last Tape (1958) had already premiered, but Albee was a then-unknown American playwright. The two plays subsequently had their American premieres in 1960 in English, again on a double bill, at the Provincetown Playhouse in Greenwich Village. Today the playwrights are world renowned and Mr. Albee openly acknowledges the influence Mr. Beckett has had on his works.

The first half of the evening is devoted to a trio of brief plotless plays, Not I, Footfalls and A Piece of Monologue by Samuel Beckett. These are challenging, dark pieces, which showcase the actors' consummate skills, but are not necessarily dramatic in their structure. Ms. Seldes appears in two and Mr. Murray one. These are unbelievably difficult works, which the actors manage to breathe life into and elevate theatrically with apparent ease. Of the three, Not I, with Ms. Seldes is the most successful. Only the actress's ruby red mouth against her white cheeks and chin is lit and visible, floating in bleak darkness. The piece is a fragmented account of the mouth's dismal life delivered with mesmerizing intensity by this outstanding actress.

Mr. Albee's 1976 Counting the Ways is a stark contrast to the unforgiving gloom of the first half, and the evening's piece de resistance. The play is light and fresh, almost burlesque in form, told in brief sketches separated by blackouts with music. The two actors are a joy to behold, having a grand time delivering the play's witty repartee, as a married couple speculating on the state of their marriage. Albee was originally going to call the play Scenes From a Marriage, but Bergman's film came out around the same time and thus the title change a reference to Elizabeth Barrett Browning's Let Me Count the Ways. The play is a marvelous showcase for the actors' comic gifts and their chemistry together will keep you grinning throughout.

Beckett/Albee is playing at the Century Center for the Performing Arts, 111 East 15th Street @ Union Square East. For tickets: 212-239-6200.

Dan's Papers CHRISTMAS CATALOG

O, Tannenbaum!

If you think Christmas trees are "harvested for slaughter" – think again, because today 98% of Christmas trees are grown on farms as sustainable crops, just like corn or pumpkins. It is believed the ritual of bringing an evergreen tree indoors and decorating it originated in Germany nearly 500 years ago, though the tradition of a holiday tree has been around since antiquity.

Christmas trees have grown to become one of the most beloved and well-known holiday symbols. Each year, shoppers find themselves confronted with a difficult choice: what kind of tree to buy. Freshly cut or root ball? Long and lean or aptly stout? Fragrant or not so? Long needles or short?

According to Joe Hren, III, at Jos. A. Hren Nurseries, Inc., in East Hampton, "the most desirable and popular Christmas tree is the Fraser fir. Though more expensive, it's prized for its sturdy branches and dense arrangement of bluish-green needles. It holds heavy ornaments well and sheds few needles." At Hren's, you'll find a selection of fresh cut and root ball evergreens including Norway, Blue, Engelman and Serbian spruce along with Fraser, Balsam, Douglas and Canaan fir.

Ah, the aromatic balsam fir. It smells is so very "Christmassy" that I am immediately drawn to it like a kitten to catnip. "In many respects, Balsam and Fraser are quite similar," says Doug over at Casale's in Bridgehampton. "The balsam is dark-green with long-lasting needles, and an attractive pyramid shape." Casale's trees are premium grade and this season they're featuring Balsams and Frasers ranging from four foot to fourteen. Equally important is the hot cider and cookies that await eager shoppers.

Another popular variety is the Douglas fir. This evergreen has shorter needles – dark-green or blue-green in color with a subtle sweet fragrance. If the mere thought of pine scent gives you a fit of the sniffles, the White Pine with its impressive cone shape is said to be less of an allergen than more fragrant trees. On the downside, heavy ornaments don't work so well on this tree and its needles sometime yellow, though not always.

The practice of using a living (root ball) tree to celebrate the holidays is gaining in popularity. Living trees have their roots in tact and can be re-planted outside following the holiday.

Several nurseries and Christmas tree purveyors like, Hren Nurseries, Marders (Bridgehampton) and Eastlands Nursery and Farms (Watermill) carry them, and offer services including setting up both cut and root ball, which they will plant outside later. Adds Joe Hren, "Ten days is pretty much the maximum for keeping a root ball tree indoors." So plan accordingly.

Though Christmas trees are the holiday season's focal point, let's not forget about wreaths, garland and winter window boxes. Among others, Whitmore's (Amagansett) offers a choice selection of trees (including evergreen topiary) wreaths and other ornamentals like white pine garland and fresh boxwood. Charlie Whitmore reports, "Eleanor (mother) handcrafts every bow adorning our wreaths." The bows are breathtaking.

The ready availability of evergreen cuttings such as fragrant balsam, luscious white pine, and berried juniper along with boxwood and holly are prime candidates for table runners and other holiday decorating. Or how about trying your hand at creating a potted winter wonderland? Tony Michel at Marders introduced me to a medley of frost tolerant plants (dwarf English boxwood, cotoneaster, blue pacific juniper, creeping raspberry, dainty winter pansies and more) and provided tips on planting and exposure.

If you like the idea but have stored your green thumb, the many nurseries and florists dotting the North and South Forks are sure to lend able hands (and thumbs) to whip up engaging creations to delight the senses. Happy Holidays (and remember to recycle appropriately)!

Tips for Caring for Your Live Christmas Tree...

1. Select a fresh tree. The needles should be moist and not break when bent with fingers.
2. Store your tree out of direct sunlight and away from drafts.
3. Immediately before the tree is brought inside, make a half-inch fresh cut from the trunk and place in water.
4. Use a Christmas tree stand that holds a gallon of water.
5. Keep your tree away from a direct heat source.

Caviar – The Royal Treat

Caviar. The Black Pearl of the Seas. The Royal Fish. Romantic visions of Caspian Sea sturgeon roe, delighting our palates and depleting our wallets. But has this always been the case? And will it be in the future?

First a quick quiz question: Which country was the major producer of the world's caviar – about 90% – during the 19th century? If you guessed the United States, you are correct. American settlers found sturgeon to be the most abundant fish in North America, and soon caviar was available free with beer in saloons, its saltiness intended to encourage more drinking. Sturgeon extinction ended American production by 1910 – until recently. More about that in a moment.

Caviar has been celebrated since as early as the 13th century, enjoyed by the Greeks, Chinese, Russians, English and Persians, who believed it had medicinal properties. Today the Caspian Sea produces about 85% of the world's top quality caviar under the umbrella term Malossol, referring to the minimal salt treatment that renders the roe so delicate and perishable. There are three types of Malossol: Beluga, the largest and least plentiful (read expensive) of the three, takes 20 years to mature and lay its dark gray, buttery eggs; Osetra, which matures after 13 years, yields golden, slightly nutty eggs; and Sevruga, the least expensive of the three, takes only 8 years to produce its dark gray, slightly seafood-tasting roe.

Unfortunately, Caspian sturgeon is rapidly disappearing due to overproduction, poaching, decline in water levels and political issues following the breakup of the Soviet Union. This has opened the door to some very fine, environmentally friendly American caviar. In the United States, by law, only roe from the sturgeon can be called caviar. Products from other fish must carry the name of the fish on the label as well, as in 'trout caviar'.

The Premier U.S. caviar, favorably compared to the best Malossol, is called California Select or Sterling. The sturgeon are farm raised by aquaculture, taking 8-10 years to mature and produce firm, fruity brown eggs. Other American fresh water fish yielding caviar are: Bowfin, Whitefish, Paddlefish, Hackleback, Trout and Salmon. American caviar, more reasonably priced than the Russian variety, has gotten a lot of enthusiastic press in the past three years as part of taste tests, restaurant menus Business Week, Time, Gourmet, chef endorsements and publications such as Wine Spectator.

Caviar normally comes in tins and jars, from 1.75 to 14 ounces. Only Tobikko, a Japanese roe harvested from flying fish and used mainly in sushi, can be safely frozen. Some American types, like salmon roe, are sold open by the ounce or on the shelf. Determining portion size of caviar is, of course, a factor of budget, how it is being served and how enthusiastic your guests are. One guideline is about one ounce per person of unadorned roe, and one-half teaspoon as a topping or accom-

Tiny Bubbles

Whether drinking the champagne of malt liquor (Mickey's Big Mouth) or the malt liquor of champagne (Champale) you are, of course, not drinking anything resembling Champagne with a capital C. As a perhaps unintended side-effect, you will probably vomit at some point.

Real Champagne is made in the bottle using a method called méthode champenoise. The bubbles form in the bottle under high pressure during a second fermentation. The other way sparkling wines can be made is called the Charmat bulk process, so named for Eugene Charmat, its inventor. This method is cheaper than the méthode champenoise, but is not to be confused in any way with the Champale bulk process which is actually brewing since it's a beer. The Charmat bulk process is pretty much what it sounds like; wine is fermented in large quantities then pumped into bottles. This method can be accomplished much more cheaply, but will most likely have you singing, "Bubbles - enormous bubbles in the wine, make me happy, make me feel fine."

I suppose everyone knows that there is no such thing as American Champagne; real Champagne comes only from the Champagne region of France. Even if the méthode champenoise is used the wine cannot be called Champagne, not on the label at least.

This is not to say that California and other places do not produce some very fine sparkling wine, it just isn't Champagne. Yes, you say, but isn't this a semantic argument? The short answer pretty much - side-stepping regional pride, climate, tradition and soil for a moment - is yes. If you go around correcting people on this, you will most likely be imbibing your bubbly, whatever you'd like to call it, alone. When your significant other turns to you after a romantic candlelit meal and asks if you want to uncork a bottle of Champagne, you don't want to hear yourself inquiring after its origin. The crux of the argument is this: we as a society have these words which work just fine as long as they are mutually intelligible. For instance, when someone asks for a band-aid you don't rummage through your medicine cabinet in search of only a Johnson & Johnson brand Band-Aid™ product while they are bleeding on the sofa. Any self adhesive strip bandage will do. OK? Good champagne (now that we've gotten that nasty little piece of business out of the way) is most often made from Pinot Noir, Pinot Meunier and or Chardonnay grapes. Blanc de Blancs are made primarily from Chardonnay and Blanc de Noirs are made primarily from Pinot Noir. Which is better is really a matter of personal taste. The good news is: it's fun to find out.

Sometimes champagne gets a bit embarrassed, blushes, and voila - you have a rosé. The all-time best description of the color of a rosé champagne comes from the Champagne Wines Information Bureau which states that the wine can draw its color "from the thigh of a blushing nymph." Um...nuff said.

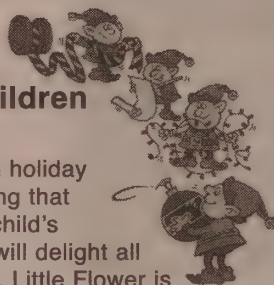

Let's get back to popping for a moment. Don't do it. Sure it creates a great fanfare when the cork shoots into the ceiling and champagne sprays all over, but bubbles are lost and this flattens out the wine. And remember the pressure from the bubbles and the second fermentation process? The cork could ricochet off the ceiling and hit something valuable like an eye or larynx. To prevent this, you'll want to drape something like a dishtowel or over the top of the bottle before you remove the crown and gently twist the cork loose. Don't become a statistic. Practice safe popping.

paniment per serving. There are about 10 one-half teaspoons per ounce.

Because of its delicacy, caviar must be handled and stored with care. An unopened tin of fresh caviar will last up to three weeks, and should be stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Once opened, it must be consumed within three days. Mike O'Rourke, of the Amagansett Seafood Store (who it must be noted makes killer fish soups) recommends that, "... while in its container you have to turn the caviar daily so that the oil keeps all of the eggs moist."

To serve, caviar should be placed gently in a glass bowl, surrounded by crushed ice. Always use bone, mother of pearl or tortoise shell spoons, as any metal, including stainless steel, will give the caviar a metallic taste and turn the cutlery black. Purists prefer to enjoy Russian caviar either with bilini and a touch of crème fraîche, or on dry toast points with a hint of lemon to retain the fresh, salty taste and texture. Frozen vodka or very dry champagne are the favored beverages, while a dry white wine also works well. American caviar is more versatile, and can be served with chopped egg, onion and parsley, with scrambled eggs, slices of cooked potato and sour cream, pasta, broiled shellfish, cold soups and open-face sandwiches.

As Charlotte Sasso of Stuart's Seafood Market, who sells about 20 pounds per year, advises, "Don't be afraid of caviar. The amazingly delicious, less salty taste and reasonable price of American caviar makes it accessible and it can jazz up a lot of dishes."

In addition, Catena's Market, Clamman Seafood Market, Quogue Market, Schmidt Brothers Produce, The Seafood Shop and Schiavoni's Market all stock some caviar, particularly at holiday time, and will order large quantities of whatever you need. Citarella has the largest supply on hand with tins of 1.75, 3.5, 7 and 14 ounces, including Beluga.

Gourmet Gifts For The Chef In Your Life

It's December and prime shopping season has officially begun. Luckily, your three-year old niece, Anna, is happy with the newest Barbie, and your ten-year-old son, Tommy, has been dreaming of a Microsizer race car since his birthday. But what do you get for someone whose middle name should be "gourmet," when your gourmet meals consist of macaroni and cheese with chopped up hot dogs?

Don't fret. That's why gourmet specialty shops were invented. And there are plenty of places for you to browse and find the perfect gift, even if you don't really know what it is that you are looking for.

If you'd like to stay local, a beautiful present for the chef in your life may be some aromatic black peppercorns imported from Madagascar. They are sold in a number of ensembles and gift boxes at the Old Stone Market in East Hampton. And according to Karen Vaucher, the sole importer of these peppercorns and owner of the Market, "they are very different from other imported peppers from China, India and South America. They have a fine aroma that brings out the flavor of what you are cooking without masking the taste."

These remarkable peppercorns, which are sold in 1/2 lb baggies for eight dollars, can be combined with a solid brass Turkish peppermill for a fine present. The pepper can also be packaged with your choice of worldly sea salts, including Hawaiian Red Sea Salt and Fleur de Sel. Or, you can find an array of dry rubs for grilling, which to a cooking green-thumb may not mean much, but to a cooking connoisseur may be an absolute delight. The Mediterranean, Thai or Whiskey Rub and even some fragrant bottled essences for baking are all be good holiday gift options. You can visit the store at 472 Old Stone Highway, call them at 267-6244, or order via email at osmarket@optonline.net.

Another good holiday shopping stop-off for the food lover in your life is the Hampton Chutney Company in Amagansett, where Gary and Isabel MacGurn meld various fruits into chutneys using recipes they learned in Bombay, India. Whether you think your cook would prefer a cilantro or curry chutney, or even a fruity mango flavor, there are a number of different chutneys to spice up any meal. You can stop by a number of stores throughout the East End, as well as Manhattan and nationwide locations to pick some up. Call 1-888-Chutnee for more information.

And if you are more of an internet shopper, shopping for your cooking professional may become even easier. If you like the idea of gathering some local ingredients, visit the New York First Company at www.newyorkfirst.com/gifts, where you can find gift baskets with a variety of regional creations guaranteed to lighten up your cooks world. Or else you can always check out Dean and Deluca's, at www.dean-deluca.com, if you don't feel like venturing all the way into the city. They have a variety of great gift ideas ranging from spice racks and risotto gift sets to whole lobes of Fois Gras de Moulard.

So even if you know close to nothing about gourmet cooking, no one else has no know. You can impress even a master chef with your choice of gourmet gifts this holiday season.

Environment Gifts

Citizens Campaign for the Environment (CCE) has been working throughout New York State to protect the environment and public health. CCE has a history of advocating for the protection of the State's estuaries, open space, and Long Island's groundwater, as well as educating the public on issues such as reducing the use of pesticides, and energy and water conservation. While CCE continues advocating for these protections, the organization last week announced another way the public can get involved.

For the second year, CCE has announced its annual appeal to members and all environmentalist consumers to practice ecologically aware holiday shopping, and provides a list of Green Gift ideas on their web site. The goal of the list is to encourage shoppers to choose ecologically friendly products to fulfill the wish lists of loved ones during this holiday season.

"Consumer trends can impact our natural resources as much as changes in federal and state policy," stated CCE Executive Director Sarah Meyland. "CCE is recommending applying the principle of consumer choice to your holiday shopping by purchasing gifts that are ecologically sound and contribute to a sustainable existence," Meyland continued.

The Friday after Thanksgiving is traditionally recognized as the official start of the holiday shopping season. With this in mind, the staff at CCE assembled a starter list of ecologically friendly holiday gift ideas, which is now posted at www.citizenscampaign.org.

Members of the public often say that they would selectively purchase products that are organic, ecologically sound, or environmentally friendly if they knew where to find them. Through their website, CCE is offering the public a reference point for purchasing products that are created in a way that minimizes harm to the environment, or products that further understanding about important environmental issues. For example, many people prepare gift baskets for the holidays. CCE offers suggestions for healthy, theme-based gift baskets including organic foods, organic or all natural personal care or bath products, organic or all natural baby products, and an organic gardeners basket. In addition to suggesting themes for baskets, many of the products that would be included in such baskets are listed on the website with links to vendors who sell them.

The CCE Holiday Gift web site includes a wide array of other gift ideas including environmental books; a membership to a community-supported agricultural products program; a block of wind generated electricity for your home or business; an earth flag to display your allegiance to environmental protection and Mother Earth; and a Shade-Grown Fair Trade Coffee Sampler. If you are looking for a big ticket item for newlyweds or a recent graduate, consider a Hybrid Automobile.

Keeping the environment in mind while shopping for the holidays can bring about important social change. In line with CCE's mission to include the public in environmental policy debates and encourage them to become political activists, CCE also encourages consumer activism. Consumer activism results in a victory for the environment every time an ecologically sound product is purchased in preference over one that results in environmental degradation.

CCE is promoting the idea of ecologically conscious holiday purchasing until the conclusion of the holiday shopping season. Of course these ideas can be used year round for birthdays, anniversaries, wedding or baby showers, and other events where gift giving is traditional. CCE welcomes ideas from the public that would expand the list of ecologically sound gifts. Individuals with good ideas or environmentally sound products should contact CCE at farmingdale@citizenscampaign.org. Have a Green Happy Holiday.

—Jessica Ottny

A Toast To Vitali-Tea And Other Warming Brew!

The tantalizing aroma of hot cider, the sweet delight of warm cocoa dotted with mini marshmallows or a steaming cuppa tea – there is nothing like a hot “bevvie” to shoo winter chills and calm a frazzled soul. It's high time to take a break. Slow down. Relax if only long enough to quaff a bit of a sprightly brew and re-energize your self.

Picture this. You. Curled up with your favorite read or jotting holiday greetings to friends and family with a cup of cocoa by your side. Forget the ready mix. For this escape we're sparing no expense. Remember the movie “Chocolat”? My mouth waters at the memory.

Heat 4 cups of milk in a double boiler at medium-low (no double boiler, just improvise – small pot in bigger one). While the milk is warming up, mix the following in a bowl: 1/2 cup cocoa (use Valhrona, Starbucks, or similar), 1 tsp unbleached flour, 1/4 cup dark brown sugar. Add enough milk to make a paste. Then add 1/4 tsp freshly grated nutmeg, a pinch of ground cloves, 1/4 tsp crushed chili peppers, 1 cinnamon stick (loosely crumbled). Add mixture to the warming milk. Do not let boil, stir constantly to keep from burning. To thicken, add cornstarch.

It takes about 15 minutes until the cocoa is ready. Use a slotted spoon to remove the bits of cinnamon off the top and add: 2 tsp sugar and 1tsp vanilla. Serve in heavy mugs. If you like, add whipped cream on top, small marshmallows, or a stick of cinnamon (for stirring.) If you're not in the mood to slave for homemade, try the hot chocolate at Mary's Marvelous! It's the real thing (translation: you won't be disappointed). What are you waiting for?

Milk and chocolate, not your thing? Well, you know what they say about apples? One a day, keeps the doctor away. And with cider you can bet you're getting your daily dose. Here on Long Island apples are notoriously good. Packed with flavor, crunch and good times, they're the usual suspects turning up in homemade pies, crumbles, sauces, juices and cider. For an easy and satisfying cider – in a saucepan heat 2 cups of fresh apple cider, a quarter orange studded with a few cloves and a 3-inch cinnamon stick. Simmer to taste and enjoy. Speaking of enjoyment.... Starbuck's offers a sinful version called Caramel Apple Cider. It's like a candy apple on a stick, but you don't have to worry about the caramel sticking to your teeth.

Another great winter brew is tea. Did you know that it's the most widely consumed beverage in the world, second only to water? Well, it's true. The world's passion for tea is legendary. In fact, tea has been around for thousands of years tracing its roots far back into Chinese history. Like many great discoveries, tea was stumbled upon by chance in 2737 BC when the Chinese Emperor Shen Nung was sitting beneath a tree while a servant boiled water. A leaf from the tree wafted into the boiling water, and the rest is history.

While the first cup of tea may have been an accident nowadays enjoying a wonderful cuppa doesn't have to be. Lining the shelves of your local grocery, health food store or “brew-tique” are numerous teas and herbal infusions to sip and be soothed by. So, here's “tea” you, drink up while the water's hot!

Like fine wine, teas paired with specific foods not only enhance the flavor of the food but also highlight the specific quality of the tea. Here are a few suggestions:

Continental Breakfast: Assam, Ceylon, Darjeeling, Dooars, Indonesian, Kenya, Nilgiri, Terai, Travancore

Eggs, Meats and Fried Foods: Assam, African blends, Ceylon, Kenya, Lapsang, Souchong, Tarry Souchong

Light Meals and Tea Sandwiches: Green, Darjeeling, Oolong

Spicy Foods: Ceylon, Greens, Jasmine

Strong Cheeses: Earl Grey, Green

Fish: Darjeeling, Earl Grey, Smoked Teas, Oolong, Green

Meat and Game: Earl Grey, Jasmine, Kenya, Lapsang

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

Lest we forget our proximity to the land and sea and all it has to offer, I think I will take a little break with simple meals before the next, and not to distant, wave of holiday cooking and baking.

Among the colorful squashes, cabbages and other cold weather plants, still on display at some of our local farmers markets, are the crinkly, dark green leaves of fresh spinach. Recently a friend gushed over a spinach dish that she had at a dinner party, containing raisins and pine nuts, as though it were a newly discovered recipe. I was sorry to disappoint her but elated to be reminded of and to revisit this classic dish. Some folks may shy away from cooking fresh spinach because of the grit imbedded in its leaves. An effective method is to trim away any large heavy stems, rinse the leaves, then soak in several changes of lukewarm water. Drain in a colander and the vegetable is ready to cook. We all know that spinach is a healthy vegetable, high in vitamin A and a good source of iron (some of us remember Pop-eye, the Sailor Man and his penchant for spinach) yet its best to cook spinach in an appetizing way. Spinach can also be used interchangeably with Swiss chard for a quick saute with slivered garlic and a pinch of hot pepper flakes. Either recipe would nicely accompany sautéed or baked fish fillets. Fresh local flounder and cod are currently coming into season.

Dessert? My stomach is so full of pecan and pumpkin pie, carrot cake and apple crisp from Thanksgiving past, that a bowl of chilled seedless red grapes will do nicely, thank you.

SAUTEED SPINACH WITH GARLIC AND HOT PEPPER

Spinach can be used interchangeably with fresh beet greens and Swiss Chard. The leaves are cooked in their raw state for this recipe.

Serves 4

2 pounds fresh, loose spinach
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
2 large cloves garlic cut into slivers
Pinch hot pepper flakes, optional
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
2-3 teaspoons lemon juice

1. Cut heavy stems from spinach and discard any blemished leaves. Rinse spinach thoroughly in several changes of lukewarm water to rid sand and grit. Thoroughly dry the leaves in a salad spinner or roll up in paper towels. Coarsely chop leaves on a board.

2. Heat oil in a large non-stick skillet and add the garlic and optional pepper flakes. Sauté for 40-50 seconds or just until garlic is lightly golden. Put in the spinach and season with salt and pepper to taste, if not using the flakes. Toss the leaves to coat in the pan and cook for 3-4 minutes until slightly wilted. Pour over lemon juice; give the leaves another toss and serve hot.

SPINACH, RAISINS AND PINE NUTS

This classic recipe has stood the test of time.

Serves 4-6

2 pounds fresh, loose spinach
1/3 cup golden raisins
1/3 cup warm water
1/3 cup pine nuts
2 tablespoons light, fruity olive oil
1 large clove garlic, finely chopped
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Cut heavy stems from spinach and discard any blemished leaves. Rinse spinach thoroughly in several changes of lukewarm water to rid sand and grit. Place spinach in a saucepan with just the water that clings to its leaves and cook for 3 minutes, no longer. Drain in a colander and refresh under cold running water to stop the cooking. Squeeze dry in the palm of your hands. Transfer to a clean kitchen towel and squeeze the towel around the ball of spinach to absorb excess moisture. Spinach should be as dry as possible. Can be prepared ahead to this point. When ready to cook, place on a cutting board and chop coarsely.

2. Meanwhile soak raisins in warm water for about 15 minutes to "plump" them.

3. Heat oil in a skillet and sauté pine nuts over medium heat until golden, add garlic and sauté for just a few seconds longer, being careful not to brown the garlic or pine nuts. Drain raisins; add to skillet with the chopped spinach, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Toss ingredients in the pan to heat through for just a few minutes and taste to adjust seasoning if necessary. Serve hot.

FLOUNDER FILLETS WITH LEMON SAUCE

Fresh winter flounder is currently coming into our local seas. Fish fillets cook quickly. Measure out ingredients and place on a tray. The actual cooking time will be mere minutes.

Serves 4-6

4-6 even size flounder fillets
3-4 tablespoons flour for dredging

1 OCEAN ROAD BRIDGEHAMPTON
537-5665

2 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 tablespoons canola or olive oil
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
3 tablespoons finely chopped flat-leaf Italian Parsley
1 lemon, scored and thinly sliced for garnish (optional)

1. Rinse fillets and pat dry with paper towels. Dredge fish on both sides with flour and shake off excess.

2. Melt 1 tablespoon of each butter and oil in a large heavy skillet over medium high heat and when hot put in two or three fillets at a time, one layer deep. Cook each side until lightly golden, about 2-3 minutes. Carefully turn with a wide spatula and cook about 2 minutes longer. Season lightly with salt and pepper and transfer to a warm platter. Melt remaining butter and oil to skillet and continue to cook the remaining fillets until done.

3. Discard fat in skillet; add lemon juice, scraping pan with a wooden spatula to deglaze pan juices. Swirl in additional tablespoon butter to enrich sauce if desired. Add parsley and stir to mix. Pour warm sauce over fillets and serve immediately. Garnish with lemon slices if desired.

Looking to throw a party for the holidays? Pacific East in Amagansett is available for private holiday parties throughout the holiday season with three private event rooms and capacity from 20 to 600 including the main dining room. A special on gift certificate purchases is also available through December, where by all gift certificates purchased by the 21 receive a 10% discount. Pacific East will be closed Christmas Day, but will be open on New Year's Eve. The New Years celebration, which is $85, will include a buffet dinner, traditional decorations, and a live DJ playing 70's, 80's, and 90's music as well as disco and European club tunes, plus, a champagne toast! Advance reservations are required and space is limited. Call 267-7770 for more info.

Tierra Mar in Westhampton Beach will host a Holiday Party of its own, on Friday, December 13. The party is open to large groups or individuals. A three-course dinner will be served accompanied by a DJ. The cost is $45 per person not including beverages, tax and gratuity. The menu will include: lightly curried local organic pumpkin soup with anise toast and crème fraiche; Long Island duck terrine with red onion apricot marmalade; stuffed breast of chicken with porcini mushrooms, basil, sun dried tomatoes and ground pignoli marsala wine sauce; mixed grill of local seasonal fish with warm citrus vinaigrette, grilled vegetables, scarlet emperor beans and steamed organic greens; and for dessert, raspberry vanilla parfait; Tierra Mar chocolate trio; or Tierra Mar fruit plate. Call 288-2700 for reservations.

In Southampton, Belles East (204-0300) is now serving brunch every Sunday from 12 noon to 4 p.m. Sample menu items include: warm goat cheese salad with Cajun roasted pecans in a mango and citrus vinaigrette; fried calamari; Louisiana eggs; Caribbean French toast; crawfish cake benedict; steak and eggs; grilled shrimp; fried chicken; BBQ ribs; and Cajun crawfish pasta.

Side Dish By Aji Jones

Moving on to East Hampton restaurant news, Babette's (329-5377) has announced they will be expanding offerings on their three-course prix fixe to include the entire menu. The prix fixe is available on Friday and Saturday evenings for $26.95 and includes your choice of appetizer, entrée and dessert. Also, a new dinner menu item is now available. The oven roasted jumbo shrimp with pistachio quinoa, butternut mousse and non-dairy Newburg sauce is ready for your sampling.

Nick and Toni's in East Hampton is now offering various packages for holiday parties. Menu one ($25 per person) sample items include: sweet sausage, escarole and lentil soup; penne alla Vecchia Bettola; and pan roasted salmon filet with crisp yellow fin potatoes and caramelized onions. Menu two ($40 per person) sample items include: chick pea and kale soup with pancetta; and thick cut pork chop with butternut squash, leeks and bacon pomegranate. Menu three ($60 per person) sample items include: winter minestrone and ditalini pasta; braised lamb shank with creamy polenta; and wood roasted chicken with roasted new potatoes. To book a holiday party, or to find out more about the menus available call 324-3550.

Are you looking for the perfect gift for that person that has everything? Buy him/her a meal at The Palm (located in East Hampton and across the country) and get your own 10% discount. When a gift-giver purchases a gift certificate, they will receive a promotional gift certificate for 10% of the gift amount. For example, when buying a gift certificate for $100 the buyer will also receive a $10 promotional gift certificate. This great special will run until December 31. Call 324-0410 for more information.

Located on Main Street in Amagansett, Café on Main (267-2200) has a three course dinner pre fixe special offered Tuesday through Saturday for $18.95. If you're closer to the East Hampton area then drop by Café on Main's sister restaurant, Café off Main (907-8800) for the same great deal Monday through Saturday. Both restaurants are open for breakfast and lunch as well.

Dining In The Hamptons

A glass of wine, and a game of backgammon? An appetizer at the bar while the jazz trio plays? A leisurely brunch, and a seat on an outside wicker bench? A fabulous, candlelit dinner in a relaxed and elegant setting? Whatever you are in the mood for, Pierre's in Bridgehampton is the perfect place to indulge.

On a cold fall night, Pierre's offers a cozy, warm evening getaway. Every seating arrangement, whether a booth or a table, creates an intimate nook where you'll be comfortable enjoying a romantic dinner for two or a chic gathering with friends or family. The teal booths add a retro feel to the space while the round windows give the vibe of being aboard a luxury sailing vessel. Long pleated curtains, softly playing jazz, dimmed lights and bucolic paintings done by local artists together create an atmosphere both soothing and invigorating for your soul.

My friend Kelly and I were greeted by owner Pierre Weber, whose charm and friendliness set the stage for our delightful evening. Our waiter Serge showed us to our table, and then described in detail the preparation and style of a few signature dishes. Arriving first to join the warm crusty bread and sweet butter were bowls of Poulet à L'oriental "En Crouste." The texture of the soup was silky, the creamy broth thickened with potatoes and coconut milk. Curry and raisins added complexity, and the glistening white chicken completed the lovely combination. The soup is covered in a crust of puff pastry.

For appetizers, we opted to follow Serge's recommendations. Coquille St. Jacques Chaudes et Petits Epinards Frais, Vinaigrette au Citron (pan seared scallop salad served with baby spinach and tossed in a vinaigrette dressing) was divine. The delicate scallops were cooked to perfection, and their heat and tenderness contrasted with the chilled crunchy leaves, as I hoped it would. At many restaurants this

Pierre's
2468 Main St., Bridge Hampton
631-537-5110

salad served long after the main ingredients have turned each other luke warm, ruining the intention. I found this one to be the best balanced and most refreshing that I've had.

Another recommendation we went with was the Brandade de Morue et Tartines Grillées (codfish and potatoes puree with garlic and croutons.) It may sound a bit strange, and according to Pierre, American diners often overlook it, but this smooth and fluffy French classic dish seemed familiar and had the same effect as our "traditional" comfort foods.

We could not stop until we had finished it, even though the portion was quite generous. Only the French can mix fish with mashed potatoes and create an elegant indulgence.

We tried Pierre's very popular sea bass, for one of our entrees. Prepared in a Parmesan crust, accompanied by roasted garlic potato puree (more!) in a Chardonnay mustard sauce, this fresh off the boat fish was light, flaky and melted in our mouths. We decided to also try the Thursday dinner special, La Paella du Pays Basque. Chock full of scallops, mussels, clams, and fish tossed with flavorful and tenderly cooked yellow rice, the paella was great, although too enormous a portion for us to dent. The leftovers were great, too.

At this point, we had no idea how we could possibly continue with dessert. But who can turn down Pierre's specialty, offered with a smile by Pierre himself? It is the Alsatian Apple Tarte, created from a family recipe (Pierre is a fifth generation pastry chef.) It is sweet and tart, a multi-layered treat filled with apples, cinnamon and raisins. Feeling decadent, we also finished the fluffy lemon tart.

Pierre's offers a $25 three-course prix fix menu and nightly specials. Starting this week, the popular crab cakes are back on the menu. A new addition for brunch, served Friday-Sunday 11-4 p.m., is the hamburger 'a cheval (a sunny side up egg on a juicy burger). Happy hour is every night 4-8 p.m. with live jazz on Sunday evenings. Private room available for parties. Pierre's is closed on Tuesdays and Wednesdays for the winter.

Appetizers range from $7-15; entrées $18-28. Pierre's also offers an extensive wine list. By the glass starts at $7, and bottles range from $25- $225. Selections are brought in from local, Californian and European vineyards

The Garden At Rock Cottage by Lance Brilliantine

THE POWER OF PRUNING

Late fall is a great time to prune trees and shrubs. There is power in pruning now! It is an opportunity to set garden infrastructure, enhance relationships, and shape plants to create a winning montage next season. Pruning supports plant growth and enhances garden aesthetics. If done right, pruning invigorates plants, removes dead wood, improves air circulation, produces a denser look, and provides more abundant flowers.

Pruning does not mean "hacking away" at plants. Rather, it requires selectivity to be effective. Poorly pruned plants are never right. The East End has too many examples of plants that look like an amateur barber has been at work. Pruning plants requires foresight, patience, and care.

Don't prune everything now. Late fall pruning is best on deciduous plants. Remember, plants like hydrangeas (Niikko Blue, Lacecaps, Oakleaf, etc.) bloom on last year's stems. Pruning now will eradicate next year's flowers. Spring-flowering plants are better pruned immediately after they bloom to increase the number of flowers the following season. Fruit trees can be pruned in fall, winter, or summer. Evergreens are best pruned in spring.

Before pruning, examine your landscape. Identify plants that have dead branches and ones that need reshaping. Visualize the garden you want and the picture you wish to create. You cannot prune more than a third of a plant's growth in any one year. Therefore, if plants have been neglected, pruning may take several seasons to get the desired result.

Begin by removing suckers growing from tree bottoms or roots. Look for shoots that grow rapidly along larger branches. These "water sprouts" can drain plant vigor and ought to be cut back to the originating branch, leaving just a bit of wood above the cut. This process thins the plant, allows light to reach internal areas, and increases air circulation.

At Rock Cottage, we sometimes want to remove entire branches, especially where larger branches compete with smaller ones. Crowded branches can allow moisture to accumulate within a plant and potentially create an environment that supports rot. We take special note of branches that cross and rub one another, as these can cause bruises and leave a tree susceptible to disease.

Remove large, heavy branches in sections to get rid of excess weight first, and to reduce the tearing of bark. Never cut branches flush with a trunk, but leave a small piece attached. Look for the branch "collar," a bulge extending from the trunk, and make the cut just above the collar. (Cut underneath first, then cut down to ensure bark does not tear.) In time, the collar will heal and form a callus. If you cut off the collar the wound will not heal properly, will promote disease and rot, and may kill the tree.

We think plants look best when they seem untouched and natural, except for formal hedges. Shape plants using one of two types of "heading" cuts to shorten and stimulate new growth: nonselective and selective pruning. Nonselective pruning creates rapid, bushy growth just below the cut. This "shearing" is for formal hedges only. Selective pruning reduces plant size without altering natural shape. To prune selectively, cut stems and branches above lateral buds that face the direction you wish new growth. Varying cuts - long and short - alters stems or branches to create a natural look. Outward-facing growth is most desirable. Angled cuts allow water run off. We prune about a quarter inch above a lateral bud, no further, as this will reduce the impetus to grow, can form dead stalks, and hamper a plant's ability to heal properly. We start at the top of a tree or shrub, always using care in cutting bottom branches, as they sometimes are slow to re-grow. Using this approach, we vary sizes, shapes, and depths of garden plants to achieve a collage of leaves, flowers, and textures.

Pruning to control the growth of plants that are too large for the landscape is not a good idea. This inevitably creates a struggle between gardener and plant - one wherein the plant typically wins. It is better to select plants whose mature size fits the landscape, and then prune to enhance visual appeal and plant vigor.

We have discovered late fall pruning is a great time to build next spring's tableau. It gets some of our yearly pruning out of the way and does not interfere with upcoming gardening tasks. We also find it exciting to visualize the stage for next year's success!

HOMEGROWN WITH BRIAN HALWEIL

Part 1: A Food Co-op Craze Hits the Hamptons

Two days before Thanksgiving John Bogosian is weighing turkeys for a handful of excited customers in the crisp air of Bogos's Food Spa. "Part of the reason I'm closed is because it's so damn cold," jokes Bogosian, the proprietor of this open-air market squeezed between the Laundry and Claws on Wheels on the food strip that is East Hampton's Race Lane.

The Food Spa may be closed for the season, but Bogosian is still selling food. In addition to the free-range turkeys that he offered for the first time this year, Bogosian runs a weekly organic food co-op that offers meats, produce, grains and other bulk goods, and a range of natural home and hygiene products. The Food Spa co-op is the latest addition to a surprisingly vibrant food co-op movement in the Hamptons that includes 30 groups on both forks, from Greenport to Montauk to Shelter Island, according to an estimate from United Natural Foods Inc., the largest natural and organic food distributor in the nation.

"For individuals to belong to a co-op, it can be a lot of work," Bogosian notes as he fits a 14-pound bird into a canvas bag. Food co-ops or buying clubs often require their members to help prepare shipments or to order in large quantities which can be difficult for small households. "There's management and planning and coordination," he says. "Like running a little communist state."

For a small commission, Bogosian makes it simple. Members browse the seemingly endless list of items for sale at www.bogosfoodspa.com (from nori to granola, from SoyBoy tofu to Amy's Organic tomato sauce, from Tom's of Maine toothpaste to coarse sea salt), place their order on-line, and pick-up their boxes at the Food Spa on Thursdays.

There is no membership fee, just a $75 monthly minimum per household – small enough to be accessible, Bogosian says, but large enough to encourage members to really participate. For single members and small families, Bogosian also offers a "Bogo

John Bogosian

Box" of assorted produce and other items in $20 and $50 sizes. (People with more questions can also call Bogosian at 329-1004.)

Bogosian acknowledges that "people have gotten used to the grocery store experience," and that ordering from a co-op means choosing food ahead of time. But, the dozen or so households who have already signed up know that membership has its privileges.

On most items, co-op customers save 30-40 percent compared with supermarket prices. And the extensive ordering list means that customers can often get items they won't find at their local grocer, like organic and natural meats.

"At the last minute, I heard he was dealing with some great product, meat-wise," says Chris, a former chef who is now a musician and who was at the Food Spa to pick up a 21-pound turkey and two large grass-fed beef filets for a Thanksgiving party of 14. Bogosian can get organic lamb, pork, sausages, and cheeses sourced largely from farms in the northeastern United States.

Bogosian, who buys as much produce as possible from eastern Long Island and the surrounding region, also fills the co-op boxes with winter squashes, potatoes, onions, greens and other organic crops from local farms like Quail Hill, EECO Farm, Sang Lee Farm, and Satur Farm, which do not all sell to the public in the winter.

Tonia Kavanaugh, a holistic health counselor and mother of three in East Hampton, who shops at the Food Spa and is part of two different food co-ops, doesn't know how she'd survive without them. "We go through so much stuff that I don't have time to run back and forth to the store, and sometimes the supermarket doesn't have organic juices or bulk soymilk or whatever I need," Kavanaugh says. "The co-op allows me to plan our meals ahead of time."

Back in the drafty Food Spa, it's getting dark and Bogosian turns on some lights as the last customers struggle under the weight of their holiday birds. Bogosian lists a number of plans he has for when the Food Spa reopens on May 1, like offering more soups, sandwiches, and other prepared meals, to complement the fresh-made juices, smoothies, wheatgrass shots, coffee and tea he already offers. Next year, he also hopes to extend his winter season, which, he notes, is "sort of hard without walls."

Home For The Holidays

While I was stuffing my suitcase with red woolen socks, the thought of home and pet lambs lowing in snow-covered woods brought a smile. But my mind raced with the gibberish unfinished work and last minute phone calls (before leaving for the holidays). Unable to breathe deeply, I noticed my heart beating. It seemed as though the lambs in my mental landscape had cell phones. It was impossible to escape my work until I remembered an old friend – homeopathic nux vomica.

Homeopathic remedies are little white pills made from a trace of a natural substance. They melt in your mouth, work without side-effects, then disappear. Homeopathic nux. vomica 30C normally treats hangover, indigestion, sinus congestion, and irritability. It is recommended for overindulging and taking too many medicines. I take it for overwork – stuffing the mind with data. It improves mental clarity without sedating effects. Homeopathic remedies, popular in Europe since the late 1700s, are available in American healthfood stores, and natural remedies such as herb teas and essential oils make thoughtful, personalized tokens of love. Suddenly, my holiday gift-buying anxiety vanished. By phone and online, I completed my shopping list in a flash.

Lin Sisters Herb Shop, located at 4 Bowery in New York carries eight Yin/Yang Sisters Instant Beverages. They are finely powdered herbs wrapped in foil. Add Yin/Yang Sisters Instant Beverages to water or juice. I bought Get Svelte for the entire family because its main ingredient, hawthornberry, reduces cholesterol and improves metabolism. Just the thing for breakfast or after a huge celebration meal. Happy Garden Tea is relaxing in the evening because of Chinese red date and wheat sprout. I bought Adapto-gin for friends who require enhanced immunity. Some have told me it prevents wheezing asthma.

Additional Yin/Yang Sisters Beverages include Flu Away to chase infections – especially useful if you plan to travel by plane. Clean Habits, a liver cleanser, improves complexion problems that result from rich eating. It tastes slightly bitter and can be added to apple juice. (To order Yin/Yang Sisters Instant Beverages, call 212-962-5417 or email www.eastearthtrade.com).

Touch can be deeply healing, especially when enhanced by aromatherapy. A gentle massage on the hands improves circulation, reduces pain, and rejuvenates, and with an essential oil, can be comforting for someone who might not otherwise like massage. It requires only a little moisturizing massage oil to make a wonderful fragrance that lasts for hours.

Organic essential oils from Himalayan Wisdoms International balance body and mind to ease tensions. The company's beauty and home products, based on Ayurveda, the five thousand year-old medical tradition from India, include massage oils, shampoos, conditioners, candles, and single essential oils. Many of my clients love Emotional Rescue massage oil, which contains calming, estrogenic herbs such as clary sage. It treats PMS, digestive bloating, mood swings, and female discomforts.

Smooth a teaspoon of Himalayan Wisdoms massage oil onto hands and face, mix it with milk for a scented bath, or let it diffuse in the room. I bought the following massage oils for family members matching the oils to suit their personalities and special needs. Vata massage oil (LH1001) is light and serene from bergamot, frankincense, lavender, lemongrass, rose geranium, and spruce. It soothes nervousness, insomnia and relaxes wrinkles. Pitta massage oil (LH1001) combines delicious chamomile, jasmine, lavender, sandalwood, and ylang ylang to cool anger, pounding headaches, red, tired eyes, and facial flushing. Kapha massage oil (LH1001) brightens mood and energizes weight loss with spicy clove, cypress, eucalyptus, juniper, lemon and rosemary. (Call: 1-866-599-6999 or see www.himalayanwisdoms.com. To order, use code LH1001 and receive a 20% discount.)

Herbs and essential oils let you feel at home anywhere. They give comfort and assurance. During my flight home, I sipped a cup of Happy Garden Tea and enjoyed the aroma of Emotional Rescue oil. May this holiday season bring you and yours joy, love, and long life.

THE STATE OF THE ARCH

If you dream of stunning movie star brows, like me, then read on. I've talked to the experts and browzed the stores to get you started.

First, I discovered that there's more to brows than meets the eye, when I plucked up courage and met with eyebrow guru, Laura Unguianu. I learned that a great pair of eyebrows is work. But it's definitely worth the trouble. Perfectly sculpted eyebrows lift your face. They finish a look and give an air of sophistication as well as opening your eye area, thus making a huge difference in your appearance. Your brows can literally change your face.

Laura Unguianu worked for Eliza's Eyes at Avon, Stephen Knoll's Salon and even in our beloved Southampton at Susan Seminele's Spa. She has waxed and tweezed the likes of Jennifer Lopez, Cindy Crawford, and the Royals of Jordan and now she's set up shop at celebrity hairstylist Mark Garrison's Salon in New York City, where, lucky for me, she worked her magic (I now have wow brows) and gave me a tip or two just for you.

So here is Laura's state of the arch advice. She suggests that you visit a professional once a month for regular expert shaping, saying that to achieve gorgeous browz takes "a combination of waxing, tweezing and trimming, based on your face shape and bone structure." Apparently, "thin brows and high arches are o-u-t and the thick, exotic look is in." NEVER pluck above the brow line – hair grows back stubbly and if you're using Retin A or O, refuse waxing at the salon, it can damage tender skin.

I sought a second opinion from the ladies at Style Bar in Sag Harbor, who agree that the fine art of plucking makes a great difference to one's face. But they say to make sure that you select a technician who will take into account your face shape to create a brow look that will accentuate your best features. And don't forget to maintain brows between visits by plucking strays.

So can you pluck solo? Well, it's tricky, but to determine exactly where your brow should begin, hold a makeup brush straight against one nostril up to your brow. This is where it should begin, and it should end a little past your eye. If you have a natural arch, work with it. To create one, the arch of your eyebrow should fall directly above the outside of your iris. Pluck slowly and carefully. Less is more in the beginning! You might want to invest in having an expert shape you first and then work with that shape.

But whether you're plucking solo, or going the expert route, there are products on the market to help you maintain a beautiful brow at home.

Most people's brows don't grow in the perfect arch – so fudge it. Use either a brow pencil, or, for a softer look, brow shadow. Fill in the areas of your brow that may be a little sparse or add shape with shadow or pencil. If you use shadow, you'll also need a brow brush. A good brand to try is Alchemy. Their powder is $15 and comes in four shades, and their slanted (very important) badger-hair brush is $19. Or try Christian Dior's brow pencil, $21.

A neat pair of tweezers, other than the typical Tweezerman, are by Vitry. Try their splinter tweezers which work on those rascally illusive strays ($23) or their regular slant tweezers ($14).

Don't forget you'll need a special brow brush to coax hairs into the perfect arch. Try Alchemy again, $9 and up. When you have perfectly sculpted brows, you'll need to keep them in place by adding a nice sheen that will make them look even more immaculate. This can be achieved by applying brow gel. Gel brands good for this are Tweezerman, Mac, Christian Dior and Alchemy.

Yes, getting gorgeous brows is work, but trust me – once you have them...you're sure to catch someones eyes.

Police Blotter

'Tis the season for holiday happenings. According to police, chestnuts weren't the only things roasting on open fires this past week.

A 1990 Plymouth suffered $3,500 damage when it caught fire on Saturday. A man reported the fire to police when he saw smoke erupting from the hood while the car was parked on Napeague Harbor Road. Amagansett firemen made quick work of the blaze without incident.

The East Hampton Fire Department responded to a Dunemere Lane residence last Friday to extinguish a small chimney fire. Firemen were able to contain the flames, caused by some ivy that had grown into the chimney, before it spread.

A bar in Hampton Bays suffered minimal damage after a small kitchen fire broke out last Saturday night. Hampton Bays Firemen were on the scene to control the blaze.

Thanks to an East Hampton police officer a possible disaster was prevented when he smelled natural gas on Railroad Avenue. He quickly made a call to Key Span and the Fire Department who investigated the situation.

Last Friday, a Park Place resident called police to report a leaking gas tank. The Fire Department was able to shut off the valve to prevent more gas from leaking.

An East Hampton man told police on Thursday that someone stole a cord and a half of firewood from his Three Mile Harbor Road property. The wood will cost about $300 to replace.

A Captain's Walk resident is out $100 after someone ripped off part of his split rail fence on Saturday. According to police, the stolen fence pieces were used to build a fire on Albert's Landing Beach.

In more news of construction destruction, a Maidstone Lane woman returned home last week to find her shed door off its hinges. She told police that the unknown perpetrator had opened her garage door and a gate.

In Noyac, Southampton Town Police are investigating a break-in that resulted in the loss of almost $22,000 worth of audio and video equipment. The Deerfield Road resident told police that he returned to his home after a few days away to find his belongings missing. Among them were an amplifier, two speakers, two speaker cabinets, two cables, two DVD players, a camera, 300 DVD's and a $400 set of silverware.

A Deforest Road resident*reported to police that someone had cut down two of her privet trees, each worth $25. The Montauk woman guessed that the cutters were blazing a trail to a nearby beach.

Just around the corner on Declaw Avenue. Several cats reported the theft of their front claws. Meow.

A fisherman aboard a Montauk charter boat told police he was missing his fishing rod. According to reports the man tied his $100 rod and reel to the railing and kicked back for a nap. When he woke, the boat was at port, most of the other passengers had left and his rod was missing. The man questioned crewmen and other possible witnesses but no one had seen anything.

FISH TALE

Dear Dan,

Our eight-year-old grandson gave us a copy of a little story he wrote. When we read it, we couldn't help but think of your giant eel story. We thought you might like to read it and perhaps include it in a part of your paper.

Thanks in advance for reading our letter and Nicholas' story.

John and Agnes Harris
East Hampton

Nick Harris 9/9/03

Once I went fishing with my grandpa, uncle and dad. We were having a great time. All of a sudden I caught a Whale Shark!

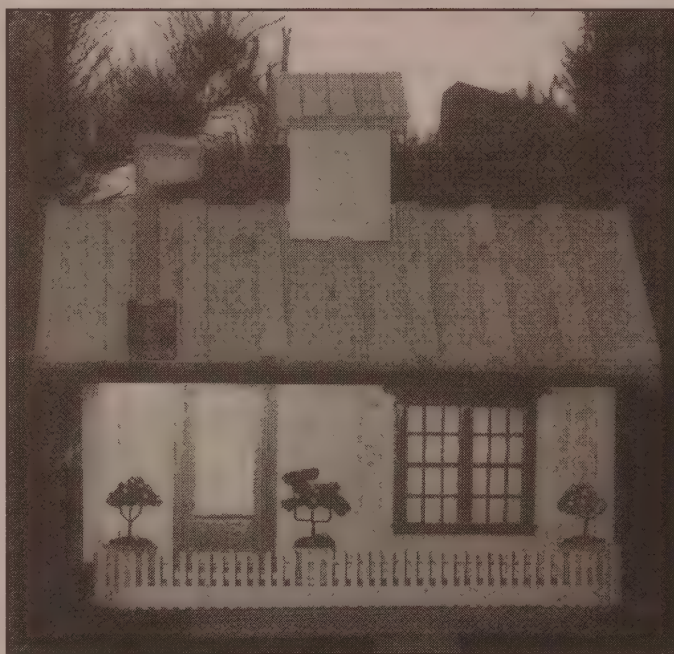

It pulled us out to 60 ft. deep water! I had let go of the pole or we would be pulled out further. Everybody was so scared that they fainted. So, I drove us back to 10 ft. water! Then everybody was safe! Then I caught a bluefish and we went home. We ate my bluefish. It was good. I told my sister what happened, but she didn't believe me. No one else believed us either. If you think that's funny, I'm lucky I'm still alive!

So That's what ate the eel! —D.R.

RANCH HELPING HAND

Dear Dan,

This letter is on behalf of Timothy Hill Children's Ranch. For the past several years we have hosted a Christmas benefit for the boys at the Ranch. They are from ten years of age to twenty-one years of age. Through the generosity of local merchants and organizations, such as North Sea Lions Club, Southampton PBA, Hildreth's Department Store, Cunningham Insurance, VFW, Souththrift Drugs, and Hampton HomeCare, we have been able to supply each boy with individual gifts as well as purchase something for each of their two houses. Although we try to fulfill their "Christmas Wish-List", often times their request is just for a family to love and care for them. As

East End Mailbox

Fern Hill has said to us, "For some children, it is their first Christmas."

Timothy Hill Children's Ranch was opened in 1980. The Ranch is named for Timothy Hill, the oldest son of Jerry and Fern Hill. Timothy was surrounded with foster children most of his life. He dreamed of just such a ranch where children could work on a farm, enjoy the outdoors, and care for horses and other farm animals. He died in a bicycle accident in 1972 at the age of thirteen. Since his death, his parents have devoted their lives to develop the Ranch and fulfill their son's dream. Over 500 boys have lived at the Ranch since it started. The Ranch is a 501 c (3) non-profit corporation under a board of directors. All gifts are tax-deductible.

The Christmas season is rapidly approaching. We are asking for your help! We realize that there are many needy causes, especially during this time of year. Any contribution would be greatly appreciated. Please make your donation payable to "Timothy Hill Children's Ranch" in care of the below address.

Thank you.

Remember the needy. —D.R.

DECEMBER DAMAGES

Dear Dan,

I always enjoy reading Bob Gelber's column Classic Cars in Dan's Papers. His article particularly struck me in the November 7 issue discussing tires. He comments "low profile tires are extremely susceptible to damage in pot holes of any large city," and "Tire rims also represent an expensive damage risk."

I can attest to this from experience. I was traveling east on Sunrise Highway heading for exit 61. I hit a pothole, which bent my rim, and the tire began losing air. The Cadillac DeVille aluminum rim was not repairable. I had to order a new rim from Cadillac at a cost of $594.49. As a precaution I had the front end aligned for a $67.85 charge.

The New York State declined to pay any of this cost based on State Law. Paragraph 58 article 3 on state highways states: "The state shall not be liable for damages suffered by a person from defects in state highways, except between the first day of May and the fifteenth day of November on such highways as are maintained by the state..." Since this incident where my rim was bent was December, this time period excluded me from placing any liability on the state to recover damages incurred on the state highway.

Drivers beware from November 16 to April 30 of potholes as you are excluded from recovering damage during this period.

John R. Brock

What a weird law. —D.R.

Moments

The most treasured gift of the holiday season is the one we give ourselves. For during the precious few weeks between Thanksgiving and New Year's we oh-so-mercifully slow the pace. Sure there are hectic hours preparing and shopping, but we all know there will be special moments when, surrounded by the people who mean the most to us, we'll steal an instant to quietly reflect on our good fortune.

So as 2003 draws to a close it is the people who mean the most to Zizzi Contracting who are to be thanked. For without our families, our valued clients, my trusted staff, our numerous suppliers, and the community that supports us, there would be no blessings to count. Thank you all. May your holidays be filled with as many treasured gifts as time will allow. — James V. Zizzi
